THE PENALTY OF MURDER.

Alfred Andersen, the Fratricide, Expiates His Crime Upon the Gallows.

THE DOOMED MAN'S LAST HOURS ON EARTH.

Verbatim Report of the Speech Which He Made to the Crowd from the Scaffold—A Well-Conducted Execution.

Alfred Andersen was executed in the jail yard adjoining the county court house yesterday afternoon at precisely seven minutes past 2 o'clock. The number of spectators was limited to the county and city officials, representatives of the press and about 200 invited guests. Three companies of military were stationed in and about the yard, their presence evidently producing a good effect upon the crowd. The man most interested was calm and self-possessed, and asserted his innocence [illegible]. The consolation of the church afforded him apparent relief up to his very last moment of consciousness. Everything was done decorously and in order, and the touching of the spring which drew the bolt from beneath the trap was followed by a death entirely devoid of sensational or distressing incidents so frequent on such occasions. The prisoner's neck was broken instantly by the fall.

History of the Crime.

On Monday morning, October 30, 1882, THE OREGONIAN contained the following:

"ANOTHER MYSTERY.—The lifeless body of a man, whose name is as yet unknown, was discovered late last evening at the head of Swan Island by Mr. P. P. Severance, an employe of Weidler's saw mill, who immediately notified Coroner Cook. The body was found in a copse of willow near the water's edge, in an advanced stage of decomposition. There are indications that the man had been murdered where he was found. A considerable quantity of clotted blood was seen on both sides of his head. No other marks of violence were observed, though the body was not touched by the party making the discovery. The dead body is described as that of a man of medium stature; well dressed in a checkered suit; his hair is light and he wore a light mustache. A stiff crowned hat was found by his side, together with a number of cards from a Chicago brewery and one card of Dr. Cohn, surgeon for the O. R. & N. Co. He wore gold sleeve buttons and studs and a gold ring. On the buttons was the monogram 'D. A.' It is impossible for the body to have been washed from the river to the high ground and among the brush where it was found. Mr. Severance thought the man was aged about 40 years. No weapon of any description was found near the body. It will be brought to the morgue and an inquest will be held to-day."

TRACING UP THE MURDERER.

The next day the coroner followed up the clues which had come into his possession with the body of the supposed murdered man, and the latter was identified as one Carl Andersen, a saloon keeper, who not long before had come from Chicago to Oregon with the intention of going into business here. His body had been plundered of a belt of gold, twenty dollar pieces, which was known to have possessed when he came from Chicago. A woman who accompanied him and who was neither wife nor sister, had also mysteriously disappeared and so had his brother Alfred. Despite this strong appearance of circumstantial evidence no arrests were made until Alfred Andersen and his brother's paramour were found to be traveling together in the vicinity of Puget sound, squandering the money that could have come from no other source than from the belt of the murdered man. So carefully had the crime been concealed that a very little detective work brought out a chain of circumstantial evidence more than sufficient to prove that a foul murder had occurred. The public, too, were deeply excited over the fact that it was a fratricide, and the prisoner when captured had but little sympathy. The woman in the case was of simple mind, and it was quickly seen that she had nothing of the whole affair. The arrest was made in San Francisco through the instrumentality of Chief of Police Lappeus of this city. A coroner's jury found Alfred Andersen guilty of his brother's murder, and on the 24th of November last a preliminary examination before Justice Davis resulted in his being committed to jail on that charge. He was promptly indicted, and after a number of delays the case came up for trial in the state circuit court on the 14th of February. After a trial of four days' duration, during which time Messrs. W. M. Gregory and L. B. Chapman used every argument of law in favor of their client but to no avail, the jury, after deliberating one hour and a half, returned a verdict of "guilty of murder in the first degree."

THE CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE.

The chain of circumstantial evidence that had been linked together to convict the doomed man showed that the crime was committed as follows: The two brothers went hunting on Swan island, having at Hudson's gun store a fowl gun. When they came back alone, returning both guns, one of which was muddy. A steamboat man, coming up the river, heard the murderous shot fired, saw a man carrying two guns, one of which he dropped in the mud. The nature of the wound—identical in [illegible]—formed a strong link in the chain of circumstantial evidence. Then, when arrested, he had nearly all his brother's money in his possession, a thing for which he gave [illegible] attempted to account. No human eye, so far as known, saw this murder, and yet the calculated criminal has been brought out and punished. The usual efforts were made by the attorneys of the convicted man to save his life, in moving for a new trial, and an appeal to the supreme court of the state. Andersen was sentenced to be hanged on the 13th day of April last. But the proceedings of the supreme court rendered a postponement necessary. When the supreme court affirmed the decision of the court below, Andersen was again arraigned for sentence, and the 20th of July fixed as the day for the execution of the extreme penalty of the law. This is a brief review of a terrible tragedy which culminated yesterday in the awful spectacle of a death on the gallows.

Last Hours of Andersen.

At 5 o'clock this morning some little noise outside the jail aroused the watch who found him sleeping in his [illegible] apartment and he barked furiously. But Andersen, to all appearances, slept soundly, not moving a finger or muscle a muscle. Not even did he breast swell, so silently did he breathe. He had slept thus soundly since 2 o'clock, utterly oblivious to every noise. The death watch had a bad cold and coughed frequently, disturbing men in other cells but Andersen. Still it was a restless sleep, such as one would [illegible] a guilty conscience brings, and not one that would "knit up the raveled sleave of care." A dozen times an hour or more he changed his position, sometimes lying on his face, sometimes on his back, his legs and arms always sprawling in every direction away from his body. Certainly, his mind was active and perturbed, but what its hot hours were, no one could ever know. If any shadow of his approaching fate had thrown itself upon his rest, no trace of their presence could be detected in his face.

ARGUING UPON RELIGION.

In the early part of the evening, Andersen was visited by a number of people, among them two ministers, the Rev. Dr. Marvin, pastor of the First Congregational church, and the Rev. Mr. Larsen, pastor of the Scandinavian society. With them the prisoner talks freely and argues upon theological points in a manner that sometimes baffles their keenness and accuracy. The points of argument are [illegible]. Those of the prisoners who have heard him say that he is a rather better preacher than the average. He talked more earnestly than ever on this last night on earth, and more frequently differed with his visitors as advanced by them in matters of the gospel. The thing which he much disputed was their tendency to condemn [illegible] the conversation toward a point where they sought to give him the only hope of happiness in the future life to confess his crime and ask to be interceded for in prayer at the throne of grace. He disclaimed all this, and was the shedding of Christian [illegible] and while denying that he had anything to confess, and [illegible] he had it to do he would confess to no one, for none of them were other than himself, but God and to him alone.

VISITED BY FRIENDS.

With others he chatted cheerfully, and while he was by no means inclined to refer to the murder of his brother, he spoke quite gently of his coming death. He said that he hoped everything would go through all right and urging him to see that [illegible], as he wanted to have his morning hours to himself. At 11 o'clock he asked for whisky, and a small drink was given him, after which he seemed less talkative. At 2 o'clock he threw himself down upon his blankets in the corner of his cell, without undressing, and composed himself to sleep.

Jailer Dougherty passed a more restless night than the doomed prisoner. He feared that Andersen would not keep his word and would attempt to commit suicide, and would not allow him to close his eyes, and every few moments he would peer into his cell in order to satisfy himself that his sleeping prisoner still breathed. The silent hours of the night seemed to increase in length as each succeeding one passed away and the rising sun, which throughout the day shone clear and bright, was very welcome.

FEIGNING SLEEP.

At 6 o'clock the interior of the jail was like a sweltering beehive with the entrance closed. The prisoners were all up and at their ablutions, making considerable noise, which was increased by the splashing of water in the Chinese department off the corridors. Still Andersen did not change. He turned over every so often but did not open his eyes or take notice of anything. Watching him closely, one became more and more convinced that he was not asleep and had not been asleep as I might have supposed, but was studiously feigning repose. This idea was almost positively confirmed when, at a few minutes of eight o'clock, Jailer Dougherty touched his prisoner on the shoulder and said: "Come, Alfred, get up now and eat some breakfast."

HIS LAST BREAKFAST.

Andersen did not stir until after he had been shaken very roughly, and then he looked up with his eyes wide open.

"How do you feel well, Alfred?"

"Pretty well."

"Did you sleep soundly?"

"Never better."

"Well, here's some breakfast for you."

After washing his face and hands, Andersen did justice to the following breakfast: Fried salmon, beefsteak, bacon and three eggs, toast and coffee. After eating everything that was placed before him, and expressed himself as now feeling very much better. It was the heartiest breakfast he had ever eaten since he came into the jail.

After he had finished he called Jailer Dougherty and asked what clothes he had. He was told, but he did not appear satisfied. After thinking a minute, he asked if he could not have a black suit, saying he wanted to dress up on this occasion as it was a particular business. His wishes were granted, and his measure having been taken, a messenger was dispatched to purchase the garments he wished.

A WOMAN WANTS TO KISS HIM.

Contrary to Andersen's former expressions, he received a number of visitors during the forenoon. The first was a woman, who though well meaning and perfectly sincere, created some amusement. She said she had promised Andersen to come to see him and she couldn't live if she hadn't kept her promise.

"I want to see him alone," she said to jailer Dougherty.

"You can't do that, madam. I must be with you."

"Oh, you can be along."

Stepping up to the barred window of Andersen's cell she addressed the prisoner with, "Alfred, you know me, don't you; you must know me Alfred."

Andersen coolly thought a moment and replied, "Yes, I remember you."

"You are going to face this like a man, are you, Alfred," she continued.

"Yes, ma'am."

"You believe that you had a fair trial, do you not?"

"No I didn't. I had no chance to get my witnesses and the men who hated me tried to swear my life away. I was not proven guilty. How could they prove me guilty—"

"Come, madam, you must hurry up and finish your talk," interrupted Dougherty, for the purpose of stopping the prisoner whose words began to sound much like the ravings of an insane person.

The woman also seemed to fear that more talking would still further excite the prisoner, for she turned to the jailer and said: "I want to kiss him or his mother now, may I?"

"I can't allow that, ma'am," was the reply.

"Then may I shake hands with him?"

"Yes, if you take off your glove and allow me to see that you have nothing concealed in your sleeve."

The woman cheerfully submitted to the precautions, shook hands with the prisoner and departed, answering her assertions that she couldn't have lived if she hadn't got up this morning and done this.

BIDDING GOOD BY.

Other visitors were mainly of the same mind—persons who believed that Andersen was about to pass into a new life, whither they would some time follow him. Therefore they wished to bid him good by, and some of them seemed to feel that it was god-speed to a happier land.

Mr. Peasley, a good Christian man who called to say good-bye, added that he hoped God would bless and save the prisoner.

Andersen's voice faltered as he replied, "I know he will; I feel sure of that."

About 10 o'clock Andersen became very much agitated, and calling the jailer, said: "I want my clothes. I've only three more hours to live, and I want to dress."

In a few minutes the clothes which he had sent for were brought, and having arrayed himself in them he seemed like a different man from the one dressed in rough sailor clothes who has so long occupied the cell.

SHEDDING TEARS.

About 10:30 some Scandinavian friends called to see him. They addressed him in their native tongue, but he, as if disdaining to have any secrets, invariably replied in English. When asked about his trial he reiterated the statement that he was unlawfully convicted, but, as if fully realizing his impending fate, added, "It makes no difference now."

Speaking of how he felt, he said to a friend: "The papers say I have no feeling. If any of those reporters could pass a night, or even an hour, in the terrible mind torture that I do they would never write that."

"Would you like to have some one write home for you?" asked another friend.

"Well, I don't care," he answered. "Of course any one may write if they like, and say what they like, I suppose, I can't help that." Here the tears came into Andersen's eyes, and he hung his head to hide his weeping. "I would have written," he almost whispered, "but I couldn't do it—I couldn't do it. I wanted to, but I couldn't—I couldn't," and the first genuine tears that he had shed since his arrest trickled slowly down his cheeks.

DEVOTIONAL DUTIES.

Andersen did not seem anxious to devote any part of his few remaining hours to religious conversation or exercises with spiritual advisers, yet when Rev. Dr. Marvin and Rev. C. J. Larsen were announced at 10:40, he signified his willingness to have them admitted to his cell. These ministers of the gospel joined with Andersen in prayer, all of them upon their knees. The prisoner was strongly exhorted to confidence in his Redeemer, and to the hope of full forgiveness for all his transgressions. Dr. Marvin felt that the secret of the sinner's heart was open to his Maker, and while the world could never know as to his faith in salvation, it he was really converted it made no difference. Andersen seemed to most enjoy listening to Rev. Mr. Larsen who spoke in the old, familiar tongue of his childhood's days. He was moved very much when the pastor spoke of his sorrowing parents and his old home far back in Norway. What his mother had told him in early life now came back to him, and his place plainly attested the sorrow in his mind as he thought of his boyish innocence that had passed away, never to return.

In conversation with the ministers, after prayers, he said he was very sorry for his sins, although he only asserting his innocence. He said he had thought the governor might grant him a pardon, but he had given up all hope of that now. From this, urged by the ministers, he began a confused and unreliable mass of varying statements about his crime, getting so greatly excited that he was again left alone for half an hour to quiet his nerves. Although he soon regained the mastery over himself and became outwardly cool and calm, yet within his veins the blood was at fever heat. A physician who called at ten minutes of twelve felt his pulse and it was throbbing furiously at 116 beats to the minute.

Shortly after this his spiritual advisers entered his cell and remained with him until the moment of his death.

At noon a lunch consisting of oyster soup, crackers and bread and butter were passed in through the bars. He ate heartily of this and also asked for a glass of whisky, but this was denied him by the sheriff's order.

At a few minutes to 1 o'clock the sheriff made his appearance in the jail corridor and gave into the hands of the jailor a pair of handcuffs. The door of the cell was opened at precisely ten minutes to 1 o'clock, and the prisoner willingly gave his hands into the handcuffs with which his arms were pinioned behind him.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE HANGING.

As early as 8 o'clock in the morning the morbidly curious began to put in an appearance at the county court house, seeking to gain admittance and to secure choice places to witness the hanging of Alfred Andersen, and from that time until the fatal drop fell the sheriff was incessantly importuned by people, among whom were not a few women, for passes to enter within the inclosure. Some curious and ingenious reasons are related by the sheriff as given by the applicants for their admittance, but, as before stated, the full number of passes were given out and the remainder were turned away disappointed. At 7 o'clock the carpenters appeared to complete the arrangements for the execution, and the sound of the hammer resounded through the corridors of the jail until the hour of noon. The scaffold, standing on the north side of the inclosure, was surmounted by a platform 10x8 feet and about nine feet high. Seats were provided on the sides of the platform for the twelve jurors, the legal witnesses of the execution. The jury consisted of the following men: David Cole, Wash Allen, Alvin Smith, James Bickenson, Dr. L. L. Rowe, Wm. G. Beck, F. B. Mason, T. B. Ind, J. H. Fittinger, F. M. Henson, James E. Courtney and Tim Stapleton. All through the forenoon groups of men and boys were upon the scaffold examining the structure with curious and critical eyes, toying with the rope and speculating upon the probable action of Andersen at the critical moment.

The following card had been furnished to all who were permitted to witness the execution:

ADMIT BEARER.
GEO. C. SEARS, Sheriff

At 11:30 the militia, consisting of the Veteran guard and Washington guard, arrived at the court yard and forthwith took up their respective stations about the court house. All who were not the possessors of a ticket were ejected and a cordon established, keeping the crowd beyond the court house yard.

Just before bringing out the prisoner, Sheriff Sears mounted the scaffold and addressed the crowd in the jail yard as follows:

"Gentlemen:—You have been invited here at your own request to witness the last moments and death of a fellow human being, and I desire that you will consider the solemnity of this occasion, so much so that you will preserve silence from the time that the prisoner enters the gate until the execution is over. This should be not only a credit to yourselves, but as a matter of humanity to your fellow being who is about to suffer death. I ask this, gentlemen, as a favor and hope you will remember this and not talk any until after the execution is over."

The Scene on the Scaffold.

The procession, headed by Sheriff Sears, emerged from the prison into the yard at 5 minutes to 2 o'clock. Following the sheriff were Revs. Marvin and Larsen, arm in arm, then the prisoner and Jailer Dougherty, and lastly Deputy Sheriff Witherell and W. M. Gregory, Andersen's former lawyer. In passing through the crowd in the yard Andersen's face was very pale, but it wore a look of calmness and composure. He recognized several faces in the crowd and nodded pleasantly toward them. He walked across the yard and mounted the scaffold with a firm step. His dress was neat and fitting, consisting of shoes, black pantaloons and vest, white shirt, stand-up collar and black necktie. He wore no coat and his hair and beard were of several months' growth, but he looked better than ever before since his confinement. Standing upon the trap his hands were unpinioned while Sheriff Sears read to him, with a slight tremor in his voice,

THE DEATH WARRANT.

State of Oregon, County of Multnomah, ss:

"To the sheriff of said county of Multnomah or his deputies—Greeting: Whereas, in the circuit court of the state of Oregon, for the county of Multnomah, on the 19th day of February, 1883, Alfred Andersen was upon trial and proceedings, duly and legally had and held, duly convicted of the crime of murder in the first degree, and afterward, on the 23d day of February, 1883, the said Alfred Andersen was, by judgment of the said circuit court, duly and legally made, given and rendered, sentenced, ordered and adjudged to be on the 13th day of April, 1883, in the manner provided by law, hanged by the neck until he was dead; and, whereas, afterward, on the 28th day of May, 1883, upon an appeal duly made and perfected from said judgment, and proceedings of said circuit court to the supreme court of the state of Oregon, the said supreme court duly affirmed the said judgment and proceedings of said circuit court in said behalf and did duly order and adjudge that the said judgment of the said circuit court stand and be executed as the judgment of said Supreme Court, according to law, on the day and at the time which should be appointed by the judge of said circuit court, in the warrant for the execution of the judgment herein, and that said cause be remanded to the said county court for such further proceedings as were by law required to carry the sentence of the Court into effect." The proceedings upon the said judgment and sentence in the circuit court having meanwhile been stayed by said appeal to the supreme court, and, whereas, afterwards, on the 14th day of June, 1883, the mandate of the Supreme Court in said behalf, duly issued, was regularly entered in the journal of said circuit court, and filed and docketed in pursuance of the direction of the said supreme court; and, whereas, on the said 14th day of June, 1883, in pursuance of the said mandate of the said supreme court, the judge of said circuit court did, by an order duly made and entered in the journal of said circuit court, order and adjudge that on Friday, the 20th day of July, 1883, between the hours of 9 o'clock in the forenoon and three o'clock in the afternoon of said 20th day of July, 1883, the said Alfred Andersen be taken from the place of his confinement at to the enclosure of the jail of said Multnomah county, then and there, in the manner provided by law he be hanged by the neck until he is dead, and that a warrant signed by the judge of said county court, and attested by the clerk thereof, with the seal of the court affixed, be drawn and delivered to the sheriff of said Multnomah county in the manner provided by law, which warrant shall state the conviction and judgment, and shall appoint the 20th day of July as the day upon which the said judgment shall be executed.

Now, therefore, in the name of the State of Oregon, you, and each of you, are hereby commanded that, on the 20th day of July, A. D. 1883, you take the said Alfred Andersen from the place of his confinement in the county jail to the enclosure of the jail of said Multnomah county, Oregon, and that there, between the hours of 9 o'clock in the forenoon and 3 o'clock in the afternoon, in the manner provided by law, you cause the said Alfred Andersen to be hung by the neck until he is dead. Herein fail not at your peril, and make due execution and return of this warrant.

Witness Raleigh Stott, of the said circuit court, with the attestation of W. H. Sewall, clerk of said last named court, together with the seal thereof, this 2d day of July, 1883.

RALEIGH STOTT,
Judge of the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon for the Fourth Judicial District.
Attest: W. H. SEWALL, Clerk.

Sheriff Sears then said: "Alfred Andersen, if you have anything you desire to say at this time you can do so."

Andersen's Speech.

Andersen said: "I have not got a great deal to say, however, I do mean to say that I have not a great while to live. I am brought here in contempt of the law. I am to die in contempt of the law of this state. There is no law in this state, or in the world, or anywhere to prove that I am guilty. There is no human being that can swear that I am guilty. There is no human being who can say that he ever saw me out side of the city of Portland. But I am in contempt but I can stand here a saved man. I am probably better off than a good many in the crowd, that is around here. There has been a good many men hung before me, and here might be a good many after me; but I hope that I am the last innocent man that will ever be hung. There was no evidence to justify me in my trial. I have had no means to show my innocence. Here are men that may be judges on the bench that may think they are doing great things in hanging an innocent man. They have the power, and they can do things which a great many other men cannot do; they can do wrong as if they can do right. But they have no authority to hang me; there is no evidence in this world to convict me, because I am convicted on circumstantial evidence.

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE

May seem strong to some at first, but after they come to look it all over there is not a man on that jury who could swear that I am guilty. There is the man that was the foreman of the jury; if he was put on the stand, could he swear my life away? But I have forgiven them, because they did not know what they were doing. We are all sinners; every one we all deserve to die. But we can do right, and acknowledge our sins. If we come up and say we are sinners, and feel that we have committed them, we will be saved; if we do not, we will all be lost. [illegible] am here in a strange country; I am here without money, and got no high position. I [illegible] work hard night and day for my living, but if I had money, if I had great influence, I would not be here to-day. [illegible] men may be guilty of crime and at the same time may be delivered of it—be any get liberty. But

WHERE I AM GOING

Things will be different, there everybody is to give an account of every action they ever did. How are you all going to stand it. Do you know when you are going to stand and give an account of everything you have done. There is nobody in this world without a [illegible] is guilty of death. Not this death for what isn't amount to anything—that don't amount to a hill of beans—but eternal death. I am prepared. I am prepared to meet my God. I shall meet him in a short time. I shall give an account of everything. You will all have to give an account of your [illegible] in this life, when you come there yourself. Influence will not do you any good there, because everybody has to save himself. There is no influence [illegible] to come—there is no high politics there, every one has to save himself. But there is one who has saved everybody. There is

PARDON FOR EVERYBODY,

And a free pardon, then for every one, and every body can be forgiven if there was not a free pardon there would be very few that would be saved. If there was any particular education, or any high politics, or power, or influence, required to go; to heaven we would be all lost sure and certain. You have the same privileges as a king or president. There is free offer to all that want it. Everybody can be [illegible]. Everybody has a right to it if he wants [illegible] here. I am convicted. I know that I am found guilty of murder. But I have not been proven guilty. There is not a judge on the bench, there is no attorney of law, that can come and point out the law in any book where it is laid down that a man should be hung for

MURDER IN THE FIRST DEGREE,

With nothing but circumstantial evidence against him, or should be brought in to serve one hour in prison. I do not deserve to serve one hour in prison, because the evidence proved almost to a certainty that it was impossible for any human being to commit the crime, because it was claimed to have been committed on the 9th of October, and it was proven that the man was alive and walking the streets of Portland on the 11th of October. One party talked with him on the streets three days after the crime is said to have been committed. There is no evidence against me. There is no man here who can say he ever saw me within three miles of the place [illegible]. The man was proved to have been alive and walking around here three days after the crime was committed and if he was dead he could not be here. But the jury went out and brought in a verdict of guilty. No doubt they thought they were doing something great; no doubt they thought that they done

SOMETHING GRAND.

But there was one of them there that was guilty of murder—they might not be guilty of murder in law here, but they are guilty of murder before the law above, and they will be held for it in the day of judgment. Everybody shall be judged unless they repent for the lies they have gone towards their fellow men; and they will find out their mistakes in the last great day. There is no doubt of that. It is very easy for twelve men to go out and find a verdict of guilty against anybody, but do they remember when they go into the jury room that they are sworn to return a verdict according to the law and the evidence? Do they do it? There is not a jury, there is none, that ever does it. It is very easy to find a man guilty, very easy to hang him, but there is a time to come beyond this when these things shall be shown. It is easy enough to go out and get

MEN WHO WILL SWEAR TO ANYTHING.

Give me $100 cash to use and I could go out here and in half an hour I could get five, ten or fifteen men who would swear to anything. I told them so, that is human nature, this is what they call justice and right, such is in this world. This is proved to be a fact. It is the love we show towards a human being. I had money I could get justice. Nowadays a poor man cannot get a show. There is no doubt of that. If a man have high politics, is a great man and has influence he can do anything. But a man to be brought up and brought into jail, imprisoned, and be taken up before people who shall swear for him? In the name of the Lord, look up here and answer. The man is afraid to look up. He and say that I am guilty. The Lord himself knows that the time shall come when I shall meet him face to face.

There was no one witness who saw me commit the crime; yet twelve men on that jury have sworn that I am guilty. There was not one witness that saw it; no one that could lift up their hand and say I am guilty. They could not say I did it. There is no evidence to convict any one.

I am going in a few moments—going to leave you all soon; me, but I shall stand before you, and I shall see everybody face to face; I shall see you all just as I see you now, to-day, and I hope your names will all be written down in plain letters on the gates of the kingdom of heaven. No one can enter there without he acknowledges his sin before his maker. If you do not repent in this world you will not be happy in the world to come. And an that commits a crime if he keeps it to himself while he leaves this world he should pray to the Lord to let his soul be lost. But should he be so saved he should

CONFESS HIS GUILT.

There will thousands of men who are innocent that have been convicted. I did not think so once; now I know it is so, and ever will be so in this world. This has happened before and will happen again; there is no doubt about it. But of course that is nothing. When a man is on the inside of a prison wall nobody outside would look down upon him, whether he is guilty or innocent. It is the general opinion that he is guilty, whether he is guilty or not. (And there are a great many innocent.) I have thought that myself. I have thought that there was not an innocent man among them, and that they were guilty of the crimes charged without a doubt, but I do not think so now. For a jury to go out and bring in a verdict of guilty, that is a very easy thing to do. But there is one here who is more guilty of murder. And there is the man who knows, but is afraid to stand up before men to testify to the truth, when a man is tried for his life. He is more guilty of murder. There is one before me that

KNOWS THE TRUTH,

But everybody does not know it. It may come to light, but it may be too late. No one can say what time it might be. It might be in this world, or it might be in the world to come, but it is going to come; that is certain. There is a time for everything to be proved. Every one of you here think probably because you have health and strength, and because you have liberty and are walking about, consider that there is time enough to repent. You are all right if you are not too late. I can say it ain't too late. I am going home in a short time, and I wish everybody could go home with me. I have not got a bad feeling towards any human being. I forgive everybody, my greatest enemies, my bitterest enemies, there is not a man on the face of the earth that has any bitterer enemies than I have; because they have taken my life, and life is the dearest thing a man has in this world. A man may be rich or he may be poor but he desires to live as long as he can. I should like to live a hundred years if I could, although I know that I am going to a better world than this, I am

NOT TIRED OF THIS WORLD

By no means. I am not tired of this world. But I cannot stay here any longer I am taken away. I am well satisfied to leave it, but I know that it is low, ungodly men that take me away from here. There are men who can judge men, there are men who can take life. They can do it in this world but they can not do it in the next. I never thought that twelve men could bring in a verdict against me. I allowed every man to sit on the jury and take the evidence under the solemnity of an oath, and they have expressed their verdict each one under oath, that he was satisfied. They ought to have taken the evidence to be a fact. I do not think the jury have done that, because they were sworn to take the evidence to be true, and there was no evidence against me, but they brought a verdict of guilty against me. But they can not give any reason for it; there was no evidence for it. I think their verdict is a hard one, but I have not got anything to say more than that I am innocent. I am condemned to die. I am not condemned for anything that I have done. The Lord is my judge. I am condemned by law, unjust men, but

I AM PREPARED TO GO.

Are they prepared? Can they stand here and say that they are prepared? I see men before me who if they should have so short a time as I have to repent, where would they be? How would they save themselves? It is almost certain that there would be no mercy for them whatever. There are men here who have committed crimes time after time, who think themselves great when they can condemn a man in this world. I am condemned myself, but let them put themselves in my position. I am here a human being the same as yourselves. Each and every one of you has as much right to be here as I have. I have just as much right to be down there where you are as anybody else. This mistake is made many times, but mistakes are made by judges and by juries. I don't care what position they hold they are all mistaken. Men can do many things in this world without a doubt, but they will find out what their deeds are; and they shall be lost unless they repent. I have no enemy in the world, not one.

I HAVE GOT BITTER ENEMIES,

But I leave the world without an enemy, and I love everybody and want everybody to love me. I die innocent, I am satisfied, I am willing to die, because I know that I am innocent. I do not desire to die, that is certain, any more than you do, but I am going to a few minutes. I shall go to a better country than this one. This one is nothing but temptations and troubles, for every one. A man may be rich, he may be poor; he may hold positions; but I say this world is nothing but temptations and misery. The next world won't have a beginning; this one has a beginning, and has an end. It is a most certain that in about eighty or ninety years not one of you will be living; and each one of you should be prepared. It is necessary for every one of you to be prepared—to go whenever the hour shall come when it is necessary for you to go."

The Final Act.

Andersen's rambling, incoherent remarks, as reported verbatim above, occupied just fifty minutes. Three or four minutes before he closed he stepped back and let the rope swing against his back and about his head and shoulders. All his remarks were emphasized, sometimes almost fiercely, by gesticulations of his long arms and a swinging of his feet. Meanwhile the crowd had grown tired, and the morbid sight-seers were decidedly impatient. Those in the street outside, who were waiting to hear the "dull thud," had several times shouted "Hurry up!" A good many in the jail yard lay down upon the grass to rest until his speech was over.

When Andersen had finished, the Rev. Mr. Larsen stepped forward to his side, and said: "Alfred, we will read a few passages in the language we are both acquainted with," and then proceeded to read from a Scandinavian bible which he held in his hand. He also offered prayer in the same tongue, Andersen kneeling with him and holding his head in his hand. At its close Andersen nervously brushed tears away from his eyes.

Rev. Dr. Marvin also offered the following

PRAYER.

"O Lord God, our heavenly father, the soul of this man is about to appear in thy presence; we pray thee to look upon him in this hour of his extremity. We pray thee, Oh God, to grant unto him such preparation for the great change that he may appear before thee. O God, wash him in the blood of the Lamb. Thou, O God, cleanse him from all sin. Oh, give him a new heart now as a testimony that he is there. We pray thee, oh God, to grant unto him redemption from all his sins. We pray thee, Oh God, to grant unto him an abundant entrance into the love and joy of life that is to come, and his redemption into a child of God. Oh, Father in Heaven we ask thee to give him a true and sincere repentance in this last hour of life. Oh, wash away his sins in the blood of the Lamb of God. Oh, Father in Heaven, we commit him to thy care. Thou art able to save him; thou art able and willing to save him. We pray thee for Jesus' sake to grant unto him grace and mercy, and lift upon him the life of thy love. Oh, Father in Heaven, we ask that he may be made one in Christ. And Oh, Father in Heaven, for Christ's sake, who died for him, we ask thee to grant unto this man faith. And a free absolution from all his sins, grant unto him an abundant entrance into the heavenly home, and may the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, the love of God our father, and the fellowship of the holy ghost be with him, amen, and amen."

FAITH IN SALVATION.

Andersen then shook hands with both ministers of the gospel, receiving the blessing of each one, and bidding them good bye. Their last words to him were exhorting him to trust in Jesus. Stray to say he then began shaking hands with in succession, and bidding good by to everyone upon the scaffold until he came to Jailer Dougherty. Dougherty and Andersen have been great friends since the latter's imprisonment, and their parting was more noticeable than any of the others. Ned whispered in Andersen's ear: "Alfred, I wish you would tell me the truth of this."

"Mr. Dougherty," was the whispered reply, "I die an innocent man." Then turning to the crowd he spoke in loud, clear tones, "I bid each and every one of you good-by."

THE EXECUTION.

Andersen now took his place upon the trap, closely examining the noose. Sheriff Sears, assisted by Deputy Sheriff Witherell, pinioned his feet and arms. The noose was adjusted and the black cap placed over his face, whereupon he began to repeat, "The Lord Jesus Christ have mercy upon my soul." With his hand the sheriff waved back the ministers who, until this moment had closely attended the unfortunate prisoner. At the same moment with his right foot he touched the fatal spring. There was the sound of a heavy fall and the motionless body of Andersen swinging by the neck showed that the demands of justice had been fulfilled.

At seven minutes past 2 o'clock exactly the drop fell. An hour and twelve minutes had elapsed since the prisoner had entered the yard. Death was instantaneous, the neck being dislocated by the rebound. The drop was six feet and nine inches. The noose worked perfectly, producing in a trice strangulation in addition. Beyond a slight convulsive twitching of the shoulders there was no sign of life, and in a few seconds the body hung limp and motionless. At the end of two minutes the legs were drawn up, but almost immediately relaxed. The left side of the neck, which was exposed by the drawing up of the noose, gradually assumed a livid hue. Drs. Saylor, Roys and Myers, the attending physicians, watched the heart and pulse beats. At the end of the first minute the beats were seventy-six to the minute, from which they gradually decreased until the tenth minute when the heart was throbbing strong at 12. From this it weakened rapidly, and four minutes later the heart stopped beating. Half a minute later there was a slight fluttering and fifteen minutes from the time the drop fell the body was pronounced dead.

The sheriff's jury made out the verdict of "death by hanging." Then the papers were given to the coroner, the body was cut down, placed in a coffin and taken to the morgue.

ISSUES FOR THE NEXT CAMPAIGN.

Southern Civilization, Improvements of that Section and the Tariff.

Supreme Judge Field in the Cleveland Leader

"What ideas have you Judge," said I, "as to what the issues should be during the coming campaign?"

"I do not know," was the reply, "as to the issues of the campaign. But I think there should be changes in the general administration of the government. A conciliatory policy should be adopted toward the south. Office of equality should be given to all states without regard to location. The south has as good brains and as good executive qualities as the north. No part of this broad country should be ostracised. It should be one nation from lakes to the gulf and from ocean to ocean. The Mississippi river should be so improved that the banks or the banks will be secure from the floods and changes of its channel. When New York, a single city, has just completed such a vast much more useful construction as the Brooklyn bridge, a great government ought certainly to be able to take care of its own territory. The attention should take this matter in hand. The improvement has been so far local, and consequently vain. The south has a bright future before it. It will be the garden of America, and in the future one of the best and richest portions of it. It has the climate, the soil, and the mineral wealth to make a great country, and the future will see it conquered with the north."

"What is your idea of the tariff, judge?"

"The true idea," replied Judge Field, "is, of course, tariff for revenue only. Free trade is not possible, and will not be for some time. At present we must have some incidental protection. Whether the present laws as to this are correct or not is not the question. Unless them immense manufacturing interests have grown up, and no I immediate change which would destroy them should be adopted."

NOTES FROM OLYMPIA.

(FROM THE OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.)
OLYMPIA, July 21, 1883.

Since my last letter there has been but little news to chronicle, if we except such trifles as the theft of a Chinaman in the sum of $60 for stealing a white woman, and the capture of an opium Chinese fiend with all his utensils complete.

On Tuesday last the members of the Olympia cornet band accepted the invitation of Dr. J. W. Waughop, superintendent of the hospital for insane at Steilacoom, and made an excursion to that delightful locality, taking the steamer Emma Hayward at 7 A. M. It was fully expected that the citizens of Olympia would take advantage of such an occasion to spend the day pleasantly, but to the disappointment of the boys, and worse still, the good people of Steilacoom, the excursion party exclusive of the band would not have made a decent corporal's guard. As the steamer neared the wharf at Steilacoom a salute was fired by the citizens, and on arriving in town, flags were found displayed from public buildings and everything in readiness for a gala day. Teams being in waiting, the members of the band were soon on their way to the hospital, and on their arrival were met by the superintendent and his estimable wife, accompanied by several visitors. After the band had played a few selections in front of the doctor's residence, they proceeded to the various wards, where they rendered excellent music, to the great delight apparently, of the unfortunate patients. The members of the band were then escorted to the different points of interest surrounding the hospital, including the hydraulic gardens, etc., the worthy doctor being ably seconded in his efforts to gratify his guests by the excellent accountant of the hospital, Mr. S. C. Woodruff, who was indefatigable in his exertions to make the visitors feel happy.

HOSPITAL FOR INSANE.

It was very gratifying to see what care is evinced by the hospital attendants towards all patients—not a cross word nor an ugly look on the faces of any of them, but on the contrary, everything done quietly yet firmly as regards the patients—perfect discipline being maintained without the slightest approach to severity. The number at present under treatment is 124, of whom 91 are males and 33 females. It is a pleasure to see this institution under the superintendence of such a man as Dr. Waughop, and it is to be hoped that the members of the coming legislature will fully satisfy themselves as to the improvements made under the administration of the present incumbent, both for the benefit of the patients individually and the territory generally, and I am almost sure they would say the work has been satisfactorily done. While the number of insane every year will increase, it will be the duty of our legislators to see that the necessary wants of the patients are supplied, and to this end it will be necessary to carefully estimate as to the appropriation required so that nothing be wanting or the improvement of the condition of the inmates, and a liberal allowance to this institution will never be frowned upon by the people of the territory at large.

After a long visitation the members of the band, having been well cared for (as far as the inner man was concerned), returned to Steilacoom and enlivened the city with several musical selections, after which a ball was given in Masonic hall, which was attended by a large proportion of Steilacoom's best citizens, and dancing was kept up until a late hour, and next morning the band returned to this city feeling satisfied that they helped in performing a charitable action by gratuitously offering their musical abilities for the benefit of suffering humanity.

Prof. C. House, of San Francisco, after carefully training the brass band of this city during the past six months, left for the former city to-day via Portland, Oregon.

Forest fires during the past month have done a great deal of damage.

Frank Mossman, who was lately stabbed, is improving.

General Albert Pike and party are expected here next week.

WHAT DOES IT ALL MEAN?

VANCOUVER, July 20, 1883.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Your local of this morning, in regard to the execution of Andersen, says: "By the authority of the governor, Brigadier General Kapus has ordered out three companies of the state militia, the Governor's guard, the Washington guard and the Emmet guard. These will form a line about the yard, and hold themselves in readiness for any emergency." What! only three companies? In view of the fact that this condemned foreigner hasn't a friend known of on this side of the Atlantic, is not the leader of any communistic organization or other organization or band likely to break loose in rescue, that there can reasonably be no great emergency against which such a showing as three militia companies can be necessary to provide, unless it be the contingency of Andersen himself breaking loose and run the city, the writer is in a quandary to understand what all this means. If it be the last supposition, it may well be imagined the terrible result of such a thing. Why was not the full police force also ordered out to defend the city from such an emergency as this? We at Vancouver are only about a 2½ miles overland from Portland and about sixteen miles by water. We recognize Fort and as a kind of grandfather guardian, and feel that we have cause to complain that we were not notified of the danger impending in time to have provided against it. Great God! suppose Andersen, after having overcome the militia, police force and citizens of Portland, should then turn his attention in this direction, what would become of us! Alas! alas! had we been warned in time, possibly the war steamer Despatch might have been ordered out to guard the mouth of the Willamette and the U. S. forces in readiness to guard our town, whereas as it is, we can only wait tremblingly the result with small arms entrenched behind our own walls at the mercy perhaps of this dangerous foe.

Seriously, it does not look well in this regard to the outside world. Would it not seem to people in the east, who read of this, that we are in a state of semi-barbarism; that the elements are so lawless; that whenever a poor devil without particular following, without friends apt to arise in insurrection, is about to be hanged, that still the lawless elements from lawless spirit alone, menace the officers of justice, thwarting the sentences of the courts? In such a showing, such a parade on such an event, necessary or proper? Has it any tendency to make crime more odious or to make more startling the aversion to crime, which the sentence for crime is in part intended to create? It looks too much like the execution of some great leader, some one guilty of great political treason or crime, upon whom the eyes of the world is centered—Guiteau and the like.

I do not wish to make light of the death even of this poor fellow who doubtless merits the enforcement of the law upon him. I write not heartlessness nor wanting in feeling the solemnity of the event, but it does seem that a quiet, non-ostentatious hanging, a quiet burial, would redound more to the dignity of the law then any seeming show of display, and more in keeping with the spirit of the law's execution.

A HEAVY CATTLE TRANSACTION.

The Hauser, Stuart & Co.'s Cattle Change Hands for $400,000.

Deer Lodge New Northwest, July 6.

The heaviest transaction in cattle that has occurred in the territory took place this week, Mr. Conrad Kohrs for Kohrs & Bielenberg, and Mr. Granville Stuart for Stuart & Anderson, purchasing of Mr. A. J. Davis the Davis, Hauser & Co. herd of 12,000 cattle for $400,000. Stuart & Anderson were former owners in the herd, the ate [illegible] in the purchase of the two-thirds interest of Judge Davis by Mr. Kohrs for $266,667. This is the heaviest transaction in cattle that has ever taken place in the territory, the next highest being that a few weeks ago when the Montana Company bought of Dowus & Allen the old 7500 head herd of Clark & Ulm for $235,000. By this transaction Con Kohrs puts himself at the head of the Montana cattle business, and in the manner of the lines is the undisputed cattle king of Montana, he and Mr. John Bielenberg owning, or owning a controlling interest in 35,000 head of cattle, which, at rates we have heard of being paid recently, are worth on the ranch a million and a half dollars. Mr. Kohrs knows what a good herd of cattle is and the fair inference is that in making the recent purchase he has secured what he believes to be a very valuable band of cattle. Messrs. Granville Stuart and Reinh. Anderson, two of our old townsmen, own a one-third interest in the recently purchased cattle, ranches, etc., and will have charge of them. The range headquarters are within four miles of Fort Maginnis, in Meagher county, and about two hundred miles east of Helena. We are glad to see our old townsmen keeping the lead and making an honest penny or two in the struggle of life.

A Kentucky Gentleman's Wardrobe.

Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette.

Congressman Joe Blackburn, of Kentucky, being called suddenly to Washington, telegraphed home to have a trunk of clothes sent to him. His little daughter, in the absence of her mother, opened the dispatch and taught it was her duty to obey it. So she packed a trunk and put a note on it as follows:

VERSAILLES, KY.

DEAR PAPA:—I send you all the clothes I can find, and I hope you are well.

Mr. Blackburn said that the trunk contained the following:

Seven white shirts.
Six winter scarfs.
One tooth brush.
One bowie knife.
Two revolvers.

This is what a Kentucky girl regards as a suitable summer wardrobe for a gentleman.

A New Prize Puzzle.

A puzzle which promises to create as much excitement as the famous 13, 14, 15 puzzle, has been invented by [illegible], N. J. The puzzle consists of [illegible] placing the letters in the box, like the figures in the 13, 14, 15 puzzle. A prize of $10 is offered to anyone who, after removing the last letter X, shall move the other letters so as to spell twenty-one different words to be found in Webster's dictionary, and one of which is marked "obsolete." The letter X is the key letter and is placed in a position lost. The words must spell from left to right horizontally, from left to right diagonally, and from top to bottom vertically. The words may consist of two, three or four letters.

Where Robeson Was Really Great.

New Orleans Picayune.

Robeson is the greatest repairer of vessels known to history. He actually spent $22,031,450 83 in repairing. He spent millions on worthless vessels. He spent $1,271,382 25 repairing the Pensacola. And so on through a tedious list. He spent $3,163,775 42 repairing single ironclad monitors, venerable relics of the war that are not of any use except as a basis for repairs.

THE SALMON PACK.

An Unsatisfactory Year for the Packers—The Pack Equal to that of Any Previous Year.

From the Astorian, July 20.

But thirteen days of the present fishing season remain, and there is not the same [illegible] probability that in the minds of any one of the thirty-eight canners exists any desire to fish beyond the limit prescribed. Indeed, it is a question what the inducement is to can now, except it be the limited supply and correspondingly low price. Many of the canneries contemplate closing, and it would seem as though nothing but the force of habit kept them running this week. It is probable that the close of the present week will see the end of the season as far as canning is concerned.

The present season has been most singular in every respect. Starting with an unprecedented amount of gear, with almost an overstocked market, an inability to effect satisfactory sales, and a general belief in a short catch, the season has been throughout one of the most unsatisfactory [illegible]. The price of fish was set at the start at a figure considerably in advance of the price paid last season. This has the effect of bringing up sufficient fishermen from the Sacramento to crowd the river in May and June all that came into the river during the run [illegible] an attempt was made more than once to lower the price, those who had their fishing gear in the river being unable to see how the fish, the canned and the material, and the price of the canned salmon left any margin for profit. From seventy-five cents to one dollar was paid for fish, and all that has been packed up to recently cost on an average, ninety cents a fish.

Up to June 15 it was believed by many that the pack would not exceed 400,000 cases; probably it would be just as well, taking everything into consideration, had events made good the prophecy. But the increased number of fishermen and the extraordinary diligence manifested in catching the fish ran the figures up rapidly, in that on the 1st of this month there was 320,000 cases packed as being put up; the pack for the season of '82, to same date, being reckoned at 277,611. From the way the salmon have been coming in since the 1st instant, more especially during the past week, it is evident that the pack will be fully up to last season's figures; should the canneries all run to their full capacity to the 1st of August this season's pack will exceed that of '82.

In this connection. The general idea seems to be to [illegible] all the cases on hand or to use up all the tin plate in stock. [illegible] have been canned fish this week. [illegible]. Owners, who are short of [illegible], and when they are [illegible] the remainder of the day in making cans.

This extraordinary run of fish in July has not been equaled in size and numbers since 1874. It has been no uncommon thing for fishermen to bring in a hundred to one boat, and of course the price at once fell. Last Monday fish brought and [illegible] figures far below what would have been looked upon as a fair price twenty days ago. The [illegible] can be and from that to fifty, has been the figure, and on yesterday's steamer went a large crowd of fishermen who refused to catch at those prices.

The state of affairs is very unsatisfactory. A man who has invested a large amount of capital, and who has been filling his cans with nine-cent fish all the season, does not feel very comfortable in over matters when [illegible] come swarming in in such numbers as to exceed the capacity of the canneries to dispose of them, and at the same time the question in his mind whether it is best to keep on or to sit down for the [illegible] to knock off altogether. [illegible] do not wholly agree with the opinion that the knowledge that there is an immense pack on the Columbia river this season is going to keep the price of fish down. The market for salmon both in this country and in England depends, of course, primarily on the price at which it leaves the hands of the retailer, but it depends in a greater degree upon the demand. In the last particular, for unfortunately our staple, the demand is a growing one. A good many exaggerated reports have been made concerning the large stocks on hand in England. These stocks are not so large as represented, and it will be the last of December before the canned [illegible] stock reaches England, and the large percentage of which this season, as on previous consignments, renders this an important item in the final disposition. Of course those who have made sales, the matter is final.

The present result of the season that is now closing will have a great influence on future seasons. It demonstrates the fact that the salmon are not "giving out," for no better or bigger runs have ever been caught in the Columbia than are now heading up the stream to spawn. It will tend to stimulate the business and make it partake more of the nature of the staple lines of trade, than has been hitherto born characteristic. The time has gone by when a man could make a fortune in one season on the Columbia river but he will never be without the same care and intelligence applied to this as any other branch of trade, and as earnest can make money. That the business is now over, one is evident.

IDAHO AND MONTANA.

The new game law in Idaho is very strict. No buffalo, deer, elk, antelope or mountain sheep are to be killed between the 1st of January and the 1st of September of each year, and not at that time if killed to obtain their hides or the carcasses on the premises.

Helena (M. T.) Herald: J. C. Lipsett, of Philadelphia, Pa., has purchased the Horse Prairie ranch property owned by Phil. Lovell, an [illegible] cattle and horse herds, the total amounting to $70,000. The cattle sold for $30 and the horses for $50 per head. Mr. Shoun [illegible] in the [illegible] Mountain district.

At the present rate of progress the Mullan tunnel, the last in the heart of the mountain will occur within the next four weeks. The west end working as now presented in little more than one-half the tunnel dimensions. The entire work will be completed early in October.

The Northwestern Montana Cattle Company has completed the purchase of D. B. Clark's [illegible] Sun river band of cattle, to about 4,000 head. The [illegible] company has now upwards of 14,000 head in their several herds, and with further increase by purchases yet to be made. Helena, says the Herald, holds the top hand in stock interests. It is mostly represented by our sheep, cattle, sheep and horses is valued at upwards of [illegible] millions of dollars.

Early in August the Northern Pacific track will intersect the Utah and Northern at the Union and Central Pacific lines at Little Butte, west of the main range. This will connect Deer Lodge, Butte, Salt Lake and other points in western and southern Montana with all rail route with the territorial capital, within thirty days will go east and south travel will probably come and go by trains plying between Helena and Deer Lodge valley. The Utah and Northern will thence be only to make close connection with the Northern Pacific at Little Blackfoot and passengers will be [illegible] to no delay. It will probably be late in the fall before the [illegible] from the junction and no [illegible] trains of the narrow gauge through to Helena.

Messrs. John Potter, [illegible], owners of a coal mine in Gallatin county, Montana, which contains a valuable property. The veins are near the [illegible], their location being about sixty miles east of Helena and four miles distant from the Northern Pacific railroad, which track can be readily laid. The principal vein has been uncovered to a length of 1,530 feet. At a depth of thirty feet a coal deposit was found four feet in width. The second vein at a depth of fourteen feet, shows a body of three and a half feet in width, and the third layer, in the same depth, one feet. The upper and second veins are separate about twelve feet, and the second and third about ten feet, their [illegible] indicating that the three will merge into one solid body as depth is attained.

HOLSTEIN, Iowa.—Dr. A. F. Ellis says: "One using Brown's Iron Bitters proves its superiority over all other tonic preparations."

The Missouri High License Law.

There has been great disappointment on the part of the supreme court of Missouri in assuming upon the Downing high license law constitutionality of the recent session of that state, and its constitutionality has been sustained throughout. The case originated in [illegible], where the defense sought to show that the law was not applicable [illegible], but the point was overruled by the court. The St. Louis Globe-Democrat, referring to the decision, says:

This decision, coming in the case of the conflict of the constitutionality of the Scott law [illegible] and the constitutional amendment of the prohibitory enactments of the lower [illegible] in Iowa and [illegible] would seem to indicate that the difficulties in the way of regulation are more easily removed than those in favor of complete suppression of the liquor traffic. Public sentiment [illegible] as in the courts, is being [illegible] with support the policy of restriction and prohibition [illegible] a thing [illegible] in its adoption is a [illegible] and a hand. In [illegible] where the license system has been incorporated into the state, and [illegible] the exception at [illegible] usually [illegible] local [illegible].

There is hardly one who will not some time [illegible] urinary [illegible].

LA CENTER ITEMS.

(OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.)
LA CENTER, July 21.

Wm. Bolen, Sr., an old resident of Lewis river, met with quite a serious accident on Tuesday. He was engaged in pushing a log with a pike pole, in the bow of a boat [illegible] when the pole broke suddenly and Mr. Bolen was precipitated forward and fell with his weight against the sharp, broken part of the pole, causing it to run through his hand in [illegible] back of the thumb. He was taken to La Center, and placed under the care of Dr. Smith, who pronounced his case quite serious, [illegible] he suffered considerable [illegible].

Wm. Alitzer, a young man living near La Center, was dropped on the rump about a half mile from this place, but his night if the [illegible] by which he supposed to be a cougar. DR. C. McLANE'S
Celebrated Liver Pills
In offering to the public Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills, as a remedy for Liver and Bilious Complaints, we presume no apology will be needed. The great prevalence of Liver Complaint and Bilious Diseases of all kinds throughout the United States, and particularly in the West and South, where, in the majority of cases, the patient is not within the reach of a regular physician, requires that some remedy should be provided that would not in the least impair the constitution, and yet be safe and effectual. That such is the character of Dr. C. McLane's Liver Pills, there can be no doubt. The great success which has invariably attended their use, will, we think, be sufficient to convince the most incredulous. It has been our sincere wish that these Pills should be fairly tested, and stand or fall by the effects produced. That they have been so tested and that the result has been in every respect favorable, we call tens of thousands to witness who have experienced their beneficial effects.
DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS are not held forth or recommended, (like most of the popular medicines of the day), as universal cure-alls, but simply as a specific for Liver Complaints, and those symptoms connected with a deranged state of that organ.

PARTISAN INJUSTICE.

One of the tales told by the telegraph in the days when it served us was founded on an allegation that a democratic member of congress from Pennsylvania had promised to introduce a resolution next winter inquiring into the charge that one of the persons now on the supreme bench of the United States (Stanley Matthews being meant) owed his appointment to a corrupt bargain made by certain managers of the last republican presidential campaign with Jay Gould. The gentleman who proposes to move the resolution of inquiry took occasion to comment upon this alleged prostitution of the highest judicial office in the government, and to assert that all the developments made with respect to the transaction had come from republicans high in the confidence of the party. No one ought to oppose the investigation, though the object of it plainly is a partisan one. There can be no expectation of proving the charge, but no doubt there is expectation of making something out of it to talk about in the presidential contest of next year. Had such a bargain been made, of course Gen. Garfield must have been a party to it. Something more than surmise is necessary to establish an allegation of this kind. It is doubtful whether there ever was a candidate of any party who would make a bargain of this sort to secure his election to the presidency. For, not to speak of the infamy of such a thing, it may well be believed, for the credit of human nature, the man has not lived who would take the position under conditions which would make him the bond slave of those who might claim to have "made him."

The Chicago Inter-Ocean has undertaken to run this matter down. First it expresses the hope that if the democratic member of congress fails to fulfil his promise some republican will have the courage to set the investigation on foot in order to give the story its quietus. It next asserts most emphatically that Mr. Gould never gave $100,000 to the republican campaign fund, either directly or indirectly; that he subscribed $5000, as did also a number of other wealthy men, whose contributions, in a single sum of $50,000, were deposited with Kountz Brothers, bankers of New York; that Mr. Gould gave a like sum of $5000 to the democratic committee, a fact which was thoroughly advertised at the time; and that if he gave the republicans any further assistance the fact was unknown to the Hon. Levi P. Morton, the treasurer of the republican committee, now minister to France.

It is sufficiently known to those who care to know anything about the matter that ex-President Hayes was mainly responsible for the appointment of Stanley Matthews, having nominated him a few weeks before the expiration of his term, but the senate refused to confirm the nomination. When Mr. Garfield became president one of his first acts was to yield to the urgent solicitations of his predecessor and others, and give Mr. Matthews another chance. This he did very reluctantly, but that he acted in pursuance of a corrupt bargain is not true. Matthews, living in the president's own state, was backed by friends who naturally had great influence with the administration, and it would have been a wonder in the circumstances had the appointment not been made. There is nothing so unjust as partisanship. Unfortunately one party has not in this respect any remarkable advantage over the other.

A NEW POLICY.

In its treatment of the captured Apaches the government has wisely determined to break away from its established Indian policy and to follow the suggestions of General Crook. The captives will be kept together on the San Carlos reservation, where they will be sustained in part by federal support. The war department will, however, perform police duty over them instead of the department of the interior, and General Crook will be personally in supervision. Of the outcome of the new policy General Crook speaks with the utmost confidence, and that confidence will be generally shared because Crook has evinced on other occasions the ability not only to cope with the natives in the field, but to retain their fear and respect when subdued, and to convert them into peaceful and self-supporting citizens. The bands which he overcame ten years ago and placed on the San Carlos reservation have become tractable and have even cultivated crops sufficient for their own sustenance. The fact that General Crook ventured to trust himself in a desolate and hostile country with a force composed almost wholly of Indian scouts, many of whom were tribally related to the Indians against whom the expedition was undertaken, goes to prove the extent to which a bold, strong, but benevolent and trustworthy officer can rely upon the good disposition of the Indian when fairly treated. Too often the agents of the Indian department have lacked the courage to inspire the respect of the Indians, and have manifested a dishonest greed which has provoked their enmity.

The experiment of placing the Apaches in peace under the same officers who subdued them in war, is certainly a rational policy, and it ought to succeed. And if it succeeds, a strong argument will have been furnished for putting the whole administration of Indian affairs under direction of the army. Viewing the matter with an economical consideration, what is the use of maintaining a costly special Indian reserve while our army is admirably adapted for the work, is idle? Discipline is what the savage and the lazy Indian needs and the soldier is the man to impress it upon him.

It has been suggested as one of the few embarrassments occasioned by the strike of the Western Union operators that many property owners, who are insured in companies which have not complied with the laws of our state are to-day ignorant whether they have indemnity or waste paper. Whatever may be said against the law which makes a deposit of $50,000 necessary on the part of companies whose capital is elsewhere, before they can legitimately solicit business in this state, in our present ignorance of events in other parts of the country we may appreciate the feeling of security communicated by the holding of policies in companies which are organized under our laws or have agencies here established in compliance therewith, as well as the difference between these policies and those issued by other companies not having deposits here which can be made to pay losses incurred in Oregon before losses in other states are settled. We remember that in 1879-80 our communication with the east and Europe was cut off for the period of a week. At this time we do not know how long the present isolation will continue, and no one can tell when there will be a repetition of it. It is well, therefore, to advise all prudent people to take advantage of the only benefit conferred by the present law and insure in companies whose capital is here or who have as a substitute, deposits at Salem. Outside insurance, expiring without an opportunity of renewal through the customary channel of communication, may play with bankrupt parties before they know it.

Why anybody should have desired to witness the expiring agonies of the poor wretch Anderson, who was hanged in the court house yard yesterday, we cannot understand, but it seems that there was general eagerness to do so. Applications to the number of several thousand, for admission to the enclosure, were made to Sheriff Sears, who very properly restricted the number to three hundred. An immense crowd, however, gathered on the outside of the high fence through which or over which it was impossible to see anything, and waited with patience worthy of a nobler cause for full two hours. And strangely, a considerable number of this morbidly curious company were women and young children.

THE TELEGRAPHIC SITUATION

Should interruption of telegraphic service continue for any considerable time it would be a strong sign that advantage was being taken of the strike to bear the stock to an extremely low point, so as to "burn up" all the outside holders and add millions to the fortunes of great speculators. The opportunity for a "deal" of this kind is patent. To suppose it is not likely to be seized would be to imagine that speculators had suddenly forgotten their greed. All that might be lost by suspension of business for thirty days would be as nothing compared with the vast profits of a "turn" of this kind. It is hard to say whether the demand of business or hunger of news will call the more loudly for renewal of the service. Suspension of one of the great agencies of civilized intercourse throwing us back in one important feature of our now complex life upon the methods of fifty years ago, shows how far we have advanced, or at least how totally we have changed during that comparatively brief period. Men can't do business now without the telegraph, nor can the man of common intelligence go with satisfaction to his day's work without first knowing the history of the world for the preceding day.

But our isolation here is not greater than that of other parts of the country, outside the leading cities of the east. There are wires from New York to Boston, to Chicago, to Cincinnati, to St. Louis, other than those controlled by the Western Union. But the great multitude of places are reached only by the Western Union wires. San Francisco is as fully cut off as Portland is.

The New York Times prints about two columns of brief interviews with Ohio republicans on the situation in their state. Their expressions, which of course cannot be set down as disinterested, indicate a growing confidence in the success of the republican ticket. This confidence appears to be based not so much on the affirmative strength of the republican ticket and platform, as upon the weakness and vulnerability of the democratic line of battle. Not all the ingenuity of the democratic press can conceal the existence of a deadly feud between the two chief factions into which its party is split. Judge Hoadly has only the qualified support of the Cincinnati Enquirer, and all old moss-backs of the party, like Thurman, Ward and Rice, are sulking in their tents where they are not openly hostile. John G. Thompson, the ex-sergeant-at-arms and general manager, is disgruntled, and Senator Pendleton is restrained by "illness" from taking any part in the campaign. The democratic orators and politicians talk in a loose way of making these defections more than good by the "solid German vote," but they doubtless deceive themselves in that. It is a peculiarity of the "German vote" that it dislikes being labeled and branded and cast as a unit in advance. The German element in our citizenship has never proved favorable soil for the cultivation of bosses, and demagogues who announce their ownership of the German vote are apt to discover after election that they have taken the surest possible course to alienate it.

No sooner have the ports of the Atlantic been closed against "assisted" pauper immigrants than an attempt is made to outflank our authorities by a movement to send paupers into the country through Canada. It is reported that a number of them have recently been found in Buffalo, N. Y., and that the local authorities have been compelled to put them in the county poor house. It is highly improbable that the laws of the United States are inadequate to defeat an invasion from this quarter. The duty of the government is obviously to devise means at once to return such vagrants to the authorities which seek to impose them upon us. The laws of immigration demand general revision at the hands of the next congress. An intelligent revision, however, will not be facilitated by dragging the subject into party platforms, as has already been done in several instances.

From Vancouver we have a letter printed elsewhere criticising the employment of state troops at the hanging in the court house yard in this city yesterday. The writer we think takes too serious a view of a trifling matter. The troops were called upon merely to do police duty. If they had not been available it would have been necessary to have employed a corps of special officers not to prevent an attempt to rescue the condemned man but to maintain quiet and order among the great crowd always to be expected upon such occasions as that of yesterday.

Many people now building houses are having no end of trouble owing to the inability of contractors to perform their part. Rivalry among builders puts the price of building below the point at which it can be honestly and fairly done, and if the contractor can not make up on high priced "extras" he fails outright. Not all contractors operate on this plan, but enough of them do to render failure, delay and vexation common. It should be borne in mind that the lowest bid is not always the best bid.

Late last night, Superintendent Lamb at the instrument in the Portland telegraph office got connection with Superintendent Jaynes at the instrument in San Francisco. Mr. Jaynes reported that he had word from New York that Western Union stock had not been affected by the strike. On Thursday it was quoted at 79, and yesterday at 80. Mr. Lamb can form no estimate of how long the trouble will last. Replying to a question, he said, "Why, man, it's only just begun."

A gentleman recently from the east, who is in a position to know whereof he speaks, says New Tacoma has been definitely settled upon as the terminus of the Northern Pacific railroad when completed. But he also added that the effect upon Portland produced by such a move would be similar to that already produced by the fact that Astoria is the "terminus" of the Columbia river.

Governor Thayer and Judge Bellinger, who came over from East Portland to work for Mayor Chapman on the day he was elected, beholding now the net product of their labors in the elevation of their friend Watkinds, ought to be happy; but some think they are not.

Mr. Charles Francis Adams, Jr., sagely observes the Norristown Herald, "should rest his soul in patience. Base ball and boat rowing are rapidly supplanting Greek and Latin as the basis of a liberal college education."

The Walla Walla Union of yesterday says, "On account of the telegraphers' strike the Union will be unable to publish easter and European dispatches, regularly culled from THE OREGONIAN."

There is no little surmise that Mayor Chapman is on the back track towards the democratic party. His late appointments do seem to give color to that supposition.

Watkinds says he intends to be chief of police—not a partisan in office. No doubt he will give us several affidavits to that effect, if we want them.

The New York World reverently speaks of Mr. Tilden as "the only democratic ex-president now living."

Next winter Montana will hold a convention to propose a constitution for a state government.

My tests of ... days (at a mean temperature of 78 deg.) on meats, etc., bought in open market have certainly been severe, and I am satisfied that the different brands of Rex Magnus, The Humiston Food Preservative, with which I have experimented

Have Accomplished all Claimed for Them.

So far as I have yet learned they are the only preparations that are effective, and at the same time practicable for domestic use. At the banquet on treated meats at the New Haven House I could not distinguish between those which had been sixteen days in my laboratory and those newly taken from the refrigerator of the hotel. The oysters were perfectly palatable and fresh to my taste, and better as it happened, than those served at the same time which were recently taken from the shell. The roast beef, steak, chicken, turkey and quail were all as good as I have ever eaten."

Safe, Tasteless, Pure.

Rex Magnus is safe, tasteless, pure, and Professor Johnson adds in his report: "I should anticipate no ill results from its use and consider it less harmful than common salt."

It is a perfect substitute for ice, heat, sugar, salt or alcohol in preserving food and retaining its natural flavor and sweetness—regardless of climate and seasons.

How to Get It.

All druggists and grocers keep it. Samples sent postpaid on receipt of price by mail or express, as we prefer. Name your express office. "Viand" for meats, poultry, etc., 50 cts. per lb. "Ocean Wave," for oyster, lobsters, etc., 50 cts. "Pearl," for cream, $1. "Snow Flake," for milk, butter, etc., 50 cts. "Queen," for eggs, $1. "Aqua Vitæ," for fluid extracts, etc., $1. "Anti-Ferment," "Anti-Fly" and "Anti-Mold," 50 cts. per lb. each. Mention this paper. Put up in 1 lb. and 5 lb. cans and in 25 lb. boxes.

LITTLE HOMES ON THE INSTALLMENT plan, one-fourth cash balance in monthly payments of $10 per month, with interest. I will sell five acres for $250; 10 acres for $475; 20 acres 1 mile near the city of Portland; suitable for suburban homes, and adapted to the growing of small fruits or for garden purposes. Now is the time to buy. Don't wait, when you can get one so cheap and on such easy terms. Come and take a free ride and see this property. HARRISON B. OATMAN, northeast corner First and Stark streets.

MULTNOMAH, THE MOST BEAUTIFUL AND accessible suburban property in the market, is an admirably located plateau naturally drained, cleared and nearly all in grass, commanding a view of Portland, East Portland, Albina, the Willamette river and all the improvements made and to be made by the North Pacific Terminal Company, has just been laid out into blocks 200x200, lots 50x100, streets 60, and alleys 16 feet. This property is part of the Thompson donation claim, on which are located all of the improvements made and to be made by the Terminal Company on the east side, and adjoins on the south the Frontonal claim, on which is the most valuable property in Albina. Multnomah is situated about half a mile north from Albina ferry, 300 feet from N. P. Terminal Company's car line, 1500 feet north machine shops and car works, 300 feet east from O. R. & N. Co.'s railway track, 2000 feet from Willamette river, O. R. & N. Co.'s depot, warehouse, elevator and N. P. R. R. proposed bridge. To encourage and aid the Multnomah Railway Company to construct its railway from Front and Morrison streets along the route and during the life of its franchise—via Albina ferry to the center of the tract—lots for a limited period are offered at very low prices, ranging from $100 to $500. Terms of sale: One-fourth or more cash, balance quarter yearly. By agreement at the time of purchase, payments may be made in ten or less monthly installments. Interest on deferred payments, 1 percent per month. Discount 5 per cent off for all cash. Apply in person or by letter to the undersigned at 165 First street corner Morrison. [18jlm] JNO. R. WHEAT.

THE TELEGRAPHERS' STRIKE.

VERY LITTLE CHANGE IN THE SITUATION.

Communication Established with San Francisco and a few Messages from the East—The Operators will Hold Out.

Practically, the situation remains unchanged. Neither the telegraph company nor the striking operators show the least disposition to yield. Strikers reiterate an unalterable determination to stand by the Brotherhood, come what will, until the Western Union grants the demands. On the other hand Superintendent Lamb remains cool, and no less determined to make the most of the situation.

The striking telegraphers claim to have received assurances from many persons in the city of warm sympathy in their cause, and offers of pecuniary assistance if it is necessary. Letters were received yesterday from a number of operators in different sections of the country, expressing strong sympathy with the strikers. One operator said: "I am with the boys to the bitter end. We can raise $100 here for you if you need assistance." The strikers are authority for the statement that various railroad operators through the country refuse to touch any despatches passing through which belong to the Western Union. Two more operators left the office here yesterday. Jeff Hayes, the receiving clerk of the office, and Mr. Gillespie, his assistant. Both are practical operators, but were not directly connected with the force of operators. At the request of the other operators, these young gentlemen handed over to Mr. Lamb the keys, books and papers and walked out of the office.

Mr. Lamb had only two operators to assist him yesterday. With this inadequate force he has been able to handle all of the local news. By constant effort they have been able to prevent business from accumulating here. There is no telegraphic interruption between Portland and all points in Oregon, Washington territory, British Columbia, Idaho and along the Northern Pacific railroad line.

Telegraphic communication was established yesterday between Portland and San Francisco, and over fifty business messages sent and twenty-six received. A relief operator was sent to Yreka to adjust the difficulty there. He was not able to establish through communication to San Francisco, owing to his want of knowledge of working the instruments. However dispatches could be sent to Yreka, and then repeated to San Francisco. This was rather slow and tedious work; but Superintendent Lamb managed to get a number of private messages through. He also communicated with Superintendent Jaynes in San Francisco, explaining to that official briefly the situation of affairs here.

Mr. Lamb informed the reporter that a number of operators were coming into San Francisco from the country; that it was hoped and expected to soon supply all vacancies created by the strikers leaving the office; that a number of operators would leave San Francisco for Portland on the next steamer; that after their arrival there would be no trouble here about handling commercial business. Mr. Lamb also stated that he had received yesterday letters and telegrams from operators at interior points in which offers to come to Portland and assist him were freely made.

Dispatches were received yesterday dated New York same day, indicating that the cables were working without interruption. Referring to the statement made by several of the striking operators that railroad operators had declined to handle Western Union dispatches, Mr. Lamb says that all messages have been sent to and received from the usual points without a single instance of refusal or interruption. A first-class operator is now on the way from San Francisco to Yreka. He will reach the latter place this evening. Direct communication will then be established between Portland and San Francisco.

BRIEF MENTION.

Sol Smith Russell matinee this afternoon.

Last performance of "Edgewood Folks" to-night.

Harvest hands are quite scarce in the Willamette valley.

A few embers are still blazing amid the ruins of Tuesday night's fire.

A guitar, lost at the fire on Tuesday night, awaits its owner at No. 1's engine house.

Two operators, Homer H. Hallock and George Thomas, absent on leave, have not joined the strike.

Four's engine had its grates burned out at the recent big fire. Yesterday new ones were put in, and a trial made.

George Daley, a stevedore, while fooling with a vicious horse, had the index finger of his left hand bitten entirely off.

Harvest is in full blast in Washington county. The yield of wheat is very light, but some better than was expected.

There arrived yesterday, from the Moscow country, for shipment to California, 100 tons of flax seed. This will be the second shipment of the season.

The new time card of the O. R. & N. road goes into effect to-morrow. Passenger trains for Walla Walla leave East Port and at 8:25 A. M. and arrive at 5:30.

While the steamer Traveller was lying at the Greenwich dock Thursday evening W. S. Buchanan's only child, Perry, fell overboard, but was saved as he was going down the last time.

Max Friendly, dealer in general merchandise at Corvallis, is financially embarrassed. His liabilities are about $21,000, of which $15,000 is due Portland merchants and $5000 to San Francisco.

Three lost children were in the police office at the same time last evening. Chief of Police Watkinds began to think that his first official act would be the employment of a wet nurse for the prison.

Ed. M. Hunter, another employe of Clay Bros.' stables on Front street, had a shoulder dislocated yesterday. He was leading a horse, when the animal reared, and Hunter holding fast by the halter thus received the injury.

The steamship Columbia which sailed yesterday, carried the first consignment of flour since the 1st of June, 175 tons. The Columbia also carried 600 sacks of wool, principally valley, and 4000 cases of salmon, which were taken on at Astoria.

George W. Walterhouse, Jr., milling engineer of Salem, has secured the contract for furnishing the machinery and building the new roller mill of Havermale & Davis at Spokane Falls, W. T. When completed it will have a capacity of 600 barrels per day.

MILITARY AND PERSONAL.

Vancouver Independent.

Lt. J. M. Ross, 21st Inf., has been ordered to Fort Canby on court martial duty.

Capt. C. A. Dempsey, 2nd Inf., left his post at Fort Lapwai on the 13th inst., on leave of absence.

Corp. Harry Harson, H Co., 2nd Inf., has been appointed hospital steward, and is ordered to Omaha for duty.

Two sons of Gen. H. A. Morrow, Robert and Henry, are on their way from Michigan to Vancouver. Robert has just graduated from the university of Michigan.

Capt. O. W. Pollock, 23d Inf., stationed at Fort Bliss, Texas, registered at headquarters last week, 11th July, and left on the 17th on his return to his station.

Mr. Alex. Thomas, formerly of Vancouver, has been promoted to a 2nd lieutenancy, and assigned to Co. K, 9th Inf., stationed at Fort McKinney, Wyoming, by order of the war department.

Major D. R. Larned, pay department, has been ordered to Portland to transfer all his funds to the chief paymaster of the department, and having completed that duty is authorized to take advantage of his leave of absence.

Lieutenant J. S. Mallory, Second infantry, has been relieved from duty at department headquarters, and has gone to Spokane Falls to take charge of the pack trains and transportation assembled at that point for the escort to the general of the army.

The ten best shots fired by Chaplain Winfield Scott, U. S. A., at Fort Canby during the June practice of Company E, Twenty-first infantry, were on June 27, 200 yards, score 4, 5, 4, 5, 5, total 23, and 4, 4, 4, 5, total 22, aggregate 44. On June 28, 300 yards, score 5, 5, 4, 5, 4, total 23, and 4, 5, 5, 4, 4, total 22, aggregate 44, per cent 88. There is not another chaplain in the army who can beat the score.

The different officers who have completed their two years tour at the military school of application at Fort Leavenworth have been ordered to join their respective companies. This will bring Lieutenant E. H. Brooke, Twenty-first infantry, back to his station at Fort Klamath. General Pope, commanding department of the Missouri, in general orders pays the class a very high tribute for their close application and performance of duties while stationed at Leavenworth.

PERSONAL.

Hon. A. D. Gilkeson, a well known lawyer of Salina, Kansas, arrived in the city yesterday via the Northern Pacific.

W. H. Dickson, general passenger agent of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad, will arrive here to-night overland.

Captain Buchanan and Gus. Bynon leave to-day on an overland fishing and hunting trip to Yaquina bay. They expect to be absent four weeks.

Dr. Mervin will preach to-morrow morning for Rev. E. R. Lee in the Calvary Presbyterian church. On Monday he and his wife will leave Portland for Victoria.

J. H. Parker, late superintendent of the mechanical work on the Northern Pacific coal bunkers in this city, left on this morning's train in company with half a dozen men, to assume charge and begin the construction of the large bridge across the Willamette river at Portland.—Tacoma Ledger.

CRICKET.

AMUSEMENTS.

"EDGEWOOD FOLKS."—Sol Smith Russell and his company presented "Edgewood Folks" again last evening to a crowded house. A false impression prevails that this company remain at New Market all of next week. To-morrow's matinee and evening performance will close the engagement in Portland, the company leaving Monday morning for the Sound.

BUSINESS NOTICE.

Important change at The Dalles.—Mr. G. T. Bolter, the popular hotel man, has taken charge of the Jackson house, and the traveling public will have no cause to complain of neglect from Mr. Bolter and his obliging and congenial subordinates.

Sol's restaurant (St. Charles) will be open as usual to-day, repairs in the kitchen having been completed.

1884.—Nautical Almanac for 1884. J. K. Gill & Co., agents for U. S. coast charts and nautical almanacs, received the above by yesterday's steamer. Mailed to any address for 75 cents.

The most acute cases of Dyspepsia, Indigestion and all disorders of the stomach relieved by Dr. Henley's celebrated Oregon Wild Grape I X L Bitters.

CLATSOP BEACH.

OBSERVATIONS OF AN "OREGONIAN" REPORTER ON A TRIP THERE.

Through in One Day—Improvements at the Seaside House—Enlarged and Refurnished—This Year's Guests.

Clatsop beach is one of the finest summer resorts within easy reach of Portland that is open to the public this season and at the same time is less frequented merely on account of the ignorance of the public as to how to get there, and what they will find on their arrival. An OREGONIAN reporter was detailed to make the trip, which, ... from a few little inconveniences, is in itself a pleasure and a recreation.

The O. R. & N. Co.'s steamer Wide West leaves Ainsworth dock at 6 o'clock every morning, excepting Wednesday, when it is supplanted by the R. R. Thompson, and with pleasure at ... for both Ilwaco and the seaside. It takes you to Astoria in about six hours. Just at the present time this part of the journey is not so pleasant as it might be, on account of a heavy smoke which overhangs the river until within a few miles of its mouth, caused by inland forest fires. After leaving Astoria the staunch little steam tug Sam carries you to either the mouth of Lewis and Clark rivers, or to Skipanon landing, as is arranged by Capt. Fisher, of the Sam, with the stage line running to the beach. In either case it is a ride of but about thirty minutes, and very enjoyable, owing to the diminutive size of the Sam, although keeping close inland, the waves toss her about until one is impressed with the idea that he is at sea, more especially when the salt sniff of sea breeze brings the object of seasons uppermost in his mind. In the case of the unfortunate reporter, however, the ride is not long enough to make a most sensitive person seasick, and gives one a grand view of the Columbia bar.

Upon reaching her destination, passengers are transported from the Sam to stage coaches, and here trouble begins. ... vehicles are comfortable for stages, but the road is simply indescribable. It has been cut up by continual heavy hauling, ... travel ... that ... nothing but dust. There is about thirteen miles of this to pull through to get to the beach from Skipanon landing, and an ordinary linen duster, with handkerchiefs wrapped about the throat is no protection. At all good strong ... like a rain storm. The horses are ordinary ... animals, as they need be, for the road through ... team could scarcely pull ... three hours of ... desert of sand. After ... view at a distance of ... dreary, this ... is brought to road, and there ... when the stage leaves the main party ... who ... is probably not a person in the One old lady ... that could not ... utter some congratulation ... point said, ... as she stopped at a farm house, at this ... rueful glance at ... stepped from the coach and cast a ... shall have to wash ... soiled clothing: "I do believe I is not very ... before supper." Really the road ... the average ... worse, as far as the dust goes, than would make it ... about Portland, and a good rain ... a ... road, a drive ... comfortable. From the main traveled ... of a few hundred yards brings you to ...

... GRIMES HOUSE.

This place is owned and managed by Mr. G. E. Grimes, who built it in 1878 and has opened it to the public every season since. It stands on the bank of Nekan kum creek, about two hundred and fifty yards from the beach, and presents a neat, home-like appearance. The resort proper consists of two large frame buildings, one serving as a kitchen, dining room and servants' quarters, and the other for sleeping apartments. The latter is a two-story building with about forty rooms, neatly furnished and scrupulously clean. The entire building is surrounded by a veranda running around all sides at both floors. A good roadway leads to the beach, through a beautiful grove, all nicely cleared and arranged for the comfort of guests. The beach at this point is probably better for bathing than at any other, being free from large rocks which lay at all other points along the beach. The sand here extends inland two ... feet above extreme high water mark, making an ... each about 150 yards wide. Tents are pitched at different points to serve as dressing rooms, and from 9 to 11 o'clock each morning the shore presents a very picturesque appearance, with the bathers in their many colored suits, running about the beach and splashing in the surf, while little children ... perfectly delighted with the prospect before them, and chase along the sand fairly screaming with joy. Mr. Grimes says his ... can accommodate about 100 persons, and when crowded can "pack in" passably. Fifty more. All his ... guests speak in the highest terms of their accommodations, and seem highly pleased with surf bathing and the surroundings generally. Following are the persons now registered there:

Rev. Mr. Plummer and family, Mrs. F. S. Allen, Maggie ... Hamlen, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Bachner, ... C. H. Dodd and family, Mrs. C. W. Malarky and two sons, Miss M. Marks and children, Mrs. Captain ..., Mrs. H. M. J. McMicheal, Mrs. D. K. Smith and children, Miss D. Percy and daughters, Mrs. F. S. Akin and children, Mrs. V. Hutchins, Mrs. ... lossom and daughter, Frederick Logan, Mrs. J. ... Francis, Rev. Dr. James, Mrs. Mason, Captain M. Rogers, Miss C. Campbell, Eugene Brewster, Rev. V. ... Cables and George Mason. Upon leaving the Grimes House, a ride of about a mile brings you to the

SEASIDE HOUSE.

Owned by Mr. Joe. Holladay, and under the management of Mr. G. C. Johnson. As this place is first brought into view with its beautiful location, one feels almost fully recompensed for the dusty ride he has taken to get there. The stage lands you at the steps of the house, where you are immediately given an idea of the comforts you are to enjoy, as you are taken in charge by the porter who after a good dusting, shows you to a comfortable well ventilated room, furnished neatly and arranged with fresh water, bowl and pitcher, clean towels, etc. All the buildings present a much neater appearance now than ever before, having been newly painted, the weather boards white and shutters green, which, with their nice location, makes them very inviting. The main building has been enlarged by moving a house of twenty rooms, which stood in the grove, up to it. The hotel is surmounted by a neat porch furnished with benches and easy chairs. All the rooms have been refitted this year, and the greater part of them newly furnished with bedding and carpets. Directly back of the hotel is a beautiful grove thoroughly cleared and furnished here and there with hammocks and benches. To the left of the house stands their reservoir, supplied from the creek by a steam pump. It has a capacity of about 10,000 gallons. In front is a lawn, in the center of which stands a fountain. Directly across the lawn are three cottages, also newly painted and furnished, and on the outer edge of the lawn is a half-mile race course, which, however has been allowed to run down for want of repair. The hotel is about the same distance from the coast as the Grimes house, and like it stands on the bank of the Nekanikum creek, which runs pure, clear water and is nicely stocked with

... AND MOUNTAIN TROUT,

With which the table is furnished daily. It might be well to remark, for the benefit of anglers, that at the bridge but a short distance from the hotel is a fish trap, in which an ordinary day's catch can be landed in a few minutes, saving the trouble of looking up streams for Indians where you can buy them. By following the creek up in the mountains the fishing is really excellent and the trout better than those caught in the trap. A peep into the cottages across the lawn in going to the track shows that they, like the hotel, are nicely furnished and comfortably arranged. The largest one, which was built for Mr. Benjamin Holladay has been enlarged, and has now ten rooms all well furnished and ventilated. It has two parlors, both of which are furnished with large fireplaces and one of an old-fashioned eastern farm house. The other two cottages have each two rooms. They are not rented to any one for any certain time, but are under the management of Mrs. Holladay, who uses them for sleeping apartments in connection with the hotel. With the three cottages the place can accommodate about two hundred and fifty people. En route to the beach is a most beautiful spot, where cedar trees have grown densely with their branches intertwined, making a complete shelter from sun and rain. It is furnished with comfortable seats, and is resorted to during the heat of the day. Sunday service is also held here. The beach is furnished with a building in which to change clothes, much out of repair however. The beach here is almost as good as at the point opposite the Grimes House, but is scattered along the upper edge with large rocks, which make it unpleasant for bathers. However, these are to be moved and a roadway built to the water's edge. A dairy and farm is run in connection with the house, which makes a sure thing of plenty of milk and butter. The table is a feature of the place and is furnished with trout, salmon, crabs and clams, fresh vegetables, and meat killed on the adjoining farm. In cleanliness and attention, nothing is wanting. Mr. Holladay states that he owns 1050 acres of land in this vicinity, which runs from the creek to the mountains and takes in considerable good grazing land and a great deal of beach. Farmers throughout this section devote almost their entire attention to dairy business, as the climate is too wet to raise grain successfully. They have a good market for butter, milk or cheese in Astoria.

Following is a list of guests now at the Sea Side House: Edgar E. Courson and wife, Mrs. Bretherton, child and nurse, Mrs. M. Cook, children and nurse, Mrs. L. F. Parker, John Gray and wife, J. E. Jordan, M. Goldsmith, L. Goldsmith, M. Wasserman, S. Wasserman, J. Corbett and wife, Mrs. Lowenberg and five children, Miss Bertha Goldsmith, A. Meier, wife and three children, Mrs. James Laidlaw and son, Miss Allen and two children, Mrs. J. N. Dolph and children, Chester N. Dolph, Wesley Ladd, Miss Carol Crowe, David Black, T. A. Davis, A. L. Fox, C. Juncheck(?), Miss Stella Sherlock, Miss Lottie Sherlock, William Sherlock, Mrs. G. O. Bailey, Miss Lizzie Anderson, Miss Lizzie Fletcher, L. Hexter, wife and children, Mrs. Carrol and daughter, J. D. Sauff and wife, Miss A. Ackerman, J. W. Garatines and wife, Louis Erim, O. Goldsmith, Ray Green, Hal Green, John H. ... and family, H. W. Ogilbee and wife, Miss S. Holman and O. K. Donohue.

NOTES.

Mr. and Mrs. John Gran left for home last evening.

There are no bathing suits for rent, so come prepared.

A force of men will be put to work on the "Seaside" beach to clear a roadway to the water.

Mrs. J. N. Dolph and Mrs. C. A. Dolph and families will remain at the seaside for several weeks yet.

The children stopping at the "Grimes House" gave a very pleasing little entertainment Tuesday evening.

The lady guests at the Seaside petitioned Mr. Holladay ... for a new piano, which was promised.

Despite the fact of there being, by actual count, eighteen very creditable musicians at the Seaside, you hear "hardly a warble."

John Gray has been the most successful angler thus far, and declares with both hands up that he ... cast a fly in the fish trap.

Mr. Courson positively disclaims any knowledge of music when asked to play, and spends his time in fishing, boating and running foot-races.

There is a mistaken idea that Clatsop Beach is a very stylish resort. There is less dress and more solid comfort than one would expect to find.

The well known running horse Osceola is now in the lead of a four-horse team making daily trips from Skipanon landing to the beach. "To what base uses," etc.

The entire cost of one person and baggage to get to the seaside is four dollars and a half. Rates of boarding range from two to five dollars per day. The trip is made in one day.

There is not a sick person at Clatsop. All unanimously praise the beach and climate, and in the same breath bewail the time when they will again have to take the stage ride toward home.

It is reported that after August 1 the O. R. & N. Co.'s boat which will connect with the "West" and carry freight and passengers to the landing. The ... at present ... filling a contract with the canneries.

ATHLETIC TOURNEY.

A Series of Contests, Lasting Forty-eight Hours, to Take Place in Mechanics' Pavilion—Donald Dinnie to Participate.

Manager F. W. Stechhan, with his accustomed enterprise, means that Portland shall be not a whit behind her sister cities in fostering the interest in athletic sports. New York has gone mad over bicycling, and the attendance at every meeting of the bicycle club is extraordinarily large, while the meeting of the wheelmen of America in the city drew crowds equaled only by gatherings of national import. San Francisco has had a wrestling epidemic, and the Grand opera house and Mechanics' pavilion, on the occasion of Donald Dinnie's matches with Muldoon, McMillan, Bigel and others, were never before equaled. It is not Manager Stechhan's hope to have Portlanders go mad or have the feeling take the shape of an epidemic, but he means to arrange a sporting carnival which will be the greatest athletic tourney ever held in the northwest, and no ... that will prove the most creditable effort ever attempted.

The Mechanics' pavilion has been secured for July 27 and 28, and for twenty-four hours, without interruption, commencing at 8 o'clock on the evening of the 27th, a series of athletic events will take place. The bicycle contest, for which are entered F. C. Merrill, the champion of the Pacific coast, Wm. T. Warren of Astoria, C. H. Greve of Portland, and several "unknowns," for $600, is to last twenty-four hours. Previous to the start all the expert bicycle riders in this city will give an interesting exhibition. During the evening a skating contest will take place for the championship of Oregon, between Messrs. Bradley and Manciet. Being attracted by the challenge of Donald Dinnie, Manager Stechhan has addressed Dinnie a letter accepting his cartel for "unknown" athletes, whom he will enter at the proper time, and he promises to surprise Mr. Dinnie and all the athletes on the Pacific coast by the results. Mr. Stechhan, in the first place, lays $250 that Dinnie cannot beat the best record in America (according to the New York Clipper), at throwing light and heavy hammers; and that he cannot give twelve and fifteen feet respectively at heavy and light hammer throwing; $250 that he cannot win at collar and elbow, catch-as-catch-can, Greco-Roman and Scotch back-hold wrestling. Mr. Stechhan is taking great chances, since these are sports in which Dinnie stands pre-eminent, and has never yet been defeated. In any event, no matter who is the victor, this city will be treated to a fine contest for athletic supremacy.

These contests are to take place during the running of the wheelmen for their purse of $600 at the Pavilion, and will well fill in the time. In addition to this a programme of other athletic sports will be offered, including throwing, running, leaping, jumping, a tug of war and Highland dancing.

NOTES FROM THE DALLES.

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

THE DALLES, Or., July 20.

The town is peaceful. Very few arrests this week.

Mrs. T. B. Merry of Portland is a guest of Mrs. A. C. Phelps in the city.

The sun has less of a fiery appearance to-day, and hopes are held that it shows a diminution of forest fires in this vicinity.

Many Indians came in town during the week to meet Mrs. McKay, wife of Donald McKay, who is on her way up country, going over early scenes of her childhood.

The corner stone of the Sisters' academy will be laid Sunday by Archbishop Seghers, assisted by the clergy of the Catholic church. The ceremonies will be new to many.

The circus will be here next Wednesday, and the small boy is busily engaged in digging up the lead pipe in the garden, and raking together the scant bits obtained by the sale of solder.

Judge E. E. Calhoun left yesterday for California upon receiving news of his wife's illness. The judge will remain in San Jose for at least a month visiting his family. Recorder T. A. Hudson will act as justice of the peace in the absence of Judge Calhoun.

The Jackson Engine Company, No. 1, had a drill yesterday afternoon. The stream thrown was a good one, and the firemen showed themselves to be in readiness and trim for an emergency. The ... fires all over the country are having an effect here—of preparing the citizens for a blaze in The Dalles.

R. F. Gibons, Esq., the efficient county clerk of Wasco county for a number of years, has resigned his official position to take a trip to his home in the east. Mr. Gibons has many friends through the county who will miss him greatly. George H. Knaggs, the well known steamboat purser on the Columbia river, fills the chair lately occupied by Mr. Gibons. Mr. Knaggs says there is some difference between running a steamboat and a county clerk's office.

SALEM NOTES.

THE EAST SIDE.

The Fire.

Yesterday morning about 3 o'clock, fire broke out in the kitchen of Capt. Jas. Wilson's residence situated on the northeast corner of Third and E streets. The alarm was given, but there was slow work in getting to the fire. A portion of Mt. Hood company with the hook and ladder truck was first upon the scene, immediately followed by others with the hose carriage and 1000 feet of hose. The hose was attached to the plug on the corner of Fourth and E, and a stream sent upon the burning building from the north side; but from the fact that the fire was as yet confined to the inside of the building the water did not reach the flames more than sufficient to keep them in check and protect outside property. The hose carriage was sent twice to the engine house before hose for a second stream was secured, but when two streams were used the fire was speedily quenched. Meantime the fire had communicated to the rear portion of the main building, and partially consumed it. Considerable of the furniture was also removed and saved. There were but about twelve or thirteen citizens who did service in stopping the fire, and yet there were about 200 bosses and chief engineers on the outside who never made an effort in the way of rendering assistance to the tired men who were compelled to run with the hose cart three times a distance of eight or ten blocks. The value of the building was about $1200, upon which there was an insurance of $900 in the North British and Mercantile company. The contents were insured in the same for $600. The loss on the contents will be covered by insurance. The building will be repaired by the company if it can be done to their advantage. Mrs. Wilson being indisposed, arose about 3 o'clock and built a fire in the kitchen to prepare something for her relief, after which she retired and the fire is attributed to this cause. Facts related above demonstrate the necessity of a better drilled hose company, more workers and less bosses.

THIRD WARD MEETING TO-NIGHT.

Citizens of the third ward are reminded of the meeting which takes place this evening for the purpose of organizing a fire company. The store of Laing's building, on the corner of Fourth street and Holladay avenue, is the place selected for the purpose, and 7:30 the time. The committee on resolutions, appointed last week, will submit a report and it is desirable a full representation be present that an organization may be perfected which will leave no grounds for reasonable complaint.

THE ALBINA SCHOOL HOUSE.

The directors of district No. 3, upon meeting yesterday to award the contract for the new school house were notified by Zeller, Stake & Co., of this city, the lowest bidders, at $7956, that they had made a mistake in their calculations, and begged to decline the contract at that figure. They appearing to act in good faith, the directors released them from their bonds, and decided to invite bids, to be received by the school clerk, A. J. Dufur, at his residence, at the corner of Fifth street and Holladay avenue, up to 6 o'clock on Monday next. New bids will be for three rooms, instead of two, as before. The old bids ranged up to $12,000, C. R. DeBurgh being the next lowest, at $9999.

SEVERE FALL.

A man named Price, while at work along the river yesterday, fell a distance of fifteen feet and sustained severe injuries. His right wrist was fractured in two places, his left knee-cap cut open, and his face badly bruised in several places. He was conveyed to the office of Dr. Dave Rafferty, who dressed his wound.

SPECIAL CHURCH NOTICES.

Congregational Church—The pastor, Rev. A. W. Bower, having been granted a vacation of four weeks, there will be no services at his church for the period designated.

First Presbyterian Church—Services held in Odd Fellows' hall, corner of Tenth and E streets. Preaching Sabbath, July 22, at 11 A. M., by Rev. Donald Ross. Sabbath school at 12:30. Congregation will unite in the Union services at 7:30 P. M. at the M. E. church. All are invited to these services.

St. David's (Episcopal) Church—This church will be closed for four weeks for the purpose of making necessary alterations and improvements. The rector, Rev. John W. Sellwood, taking advantage of this opportunity to spend his vacation, his father, Rev. Jas. R. W. Sellwood, will during his absence perform any pastoral work or official acts that may be required.

Union Services—On account of the heat this time, and its consequent effect upon the various congregations, it has been agreed by the Methodist, Presbyterian, Baptist and United Brethren churches to hold a series of union services on Sunday evenings. These services will be held alternately at the different churches, and the first, which occurs to-morrow, will take place at the Methodist church, the pastor, Rev. T. L. Sails, officiating. This arrangement will not interfere with the morning services, which will occur at the various churches mentioned as usual.

NOTES.

An enjoyable sociable occurred at the Odd Fellows' hall last evening under the auspices of the Presbyterian church.

J. K. Laing, wife and family leave for the coast this morning. Mr. Laing, after seeing that his family are well quartered for a stay of several weeks, will return on Wednesday next.

Rev. John W. Sellwood, rector of the St. David's (Episcopal) church, left yesterday morning with his family to spend a short vacation at Neatucca bay. His postoffice address will be ... cetown, Tillamook county, Oregon."

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST.

Eastern Oregon.

Doric Lodge, No 20, K. of P., has been organized at Heppner.

The killing of Benj. J. Acock by Tom McDuffee at the Warm Spring ranch, in Baker county, was brought about by the former's visits to the latter's family. McDuffee met Acock in a field and asked the reason of the visits. Acock made threatening motions, when McDuffee shot him dead, went to Canyon City and surrendered. He is well spoken of by neighbors.

A Harney correspondent writes as follows to the Baker City Tribune: The Piutes are returning in droves. Already about 150 are in and about old Camp Harney. They said to Mrs. W. V. Johnson that their bucks were hunting, yet some days they are seen lingering about their camp here in a place. Some of their chiefs show themselves, while others do not. Whether they are for any good or not is a mystery to the settlers. We will send a messenger to Camp Bidwell this night for W. S. troops. If the people of this country are not mistaken we will have trouble in a few days. Fires can be seen in every direction at on a little after dark, and the hideous whoops of the Indians makes one's blood run cold through fear.

Heppner Gazette: Only a few years ago sagebrush land was looked upon as worthless. Its dry, hopeless appearance gave one the impression that it was only fit for the cultivation of horned toads and rattlesnakes. When Tex Groff commenced reclaiming a tract of sage land a few miles below town, he was thought to be wasting considerable good, hard work. But now that same dry desert land is producing some of the best grain to be found in this or any other country. A piece of this same kind of land on Mr. Lind's place down the creek has this year produced five tons of wheat hay to the acre. All that sage land needs is cultivating, throwing in the seed and irrigating. Water will work wonders with it, and a bountiful yield will result.

Baker City Tribune, 11th inst.: On Friday last Messrs. Watt and Sisill, representing the O. R. & N. Co., and the O. S. L. Co., closed an agreement with Huntington Brothers by which the point of junction of the two roads was determined. We are informed that the companies each have an interest in the property transferred by the gentlemen referred to, they themselves retaining an interest. If this is true, no doubt the railroad companies will do all they can to make Huntington an important place. The party went to La Grande to transact some business in connection with the land inquisition on Friday afternoon. Mr. Watt went to Portland, and the others returned here late Saturday evening. Mr. Sisill left immediately by private conveyance for Weiser.

Western Oregen.

A "timothy" story comes from L. Thompson of Yamhill, and is seven feet two inches high.

John Williamson, Jr., aged twenty-one years, has been committed to the insane asylum from Astoria.

The finest fruit orchard in Marion county is on George McClane's place, near Salem. The frost did not injure it.

David Myer's sawmill burned down on the night of the 17th inst. It was located about five miles above Solo, and is supposed to have caught from a spark from the smokestack of the engine.

Salem is in a good financial condition. There is a surplus of $4,500 or thereabouts in the city treasury—$1000 more than is necessary to build the new brick adjoining Capital engine company's building.

Work will soon be commenced on the new Baptist church at McMinnville. The building will be 34x52 feet, with fourteen foot walls, and the seating capacity will be sufficient to accommodate that community for years to come.

The following list of teachers have been employed to teach in the Salem public schools, commencing September 3: G. A. Peebles, Misses Emil Heslet, Addie Sarber, Gabie Clark, Lizzie McHary, M. T'Arcy, Lizzie Dearborn and Etta [illegible], and Messrs. J. A. Bellwood, J. H. Ellsworth, and Thos. VanWagner. Prof. J. T. Gregg, superintendent. The positions are as yet unassigned.

Corvallis Gazette: On last Tuesday Sol King brought into our office a number of heads of wheat gathered from the farm of John Moor, just north of town, which, for size and quality, we have never seen excelled. The seed was brought from Polk county by Mr. Moore, and although damaged by freezing last winter will make a large yield. It is certainly a very profitable variety and more of it should be sown here.

Hon. George W. Waggoner returned to Corvallis last Tuesday from a trip through Linn county. During his trip he made close observation of the crops through Linn county. He finds grain looking unusually well, having a fine, thrifty, green growing color. He examined it so as to see if it was likely to fill well, and found it in perfect condition in that regard, and from its appearance he feels confident in putting the crop through the section of country at not less than a three-fourths one.

Twenty-two new cells will be added to the State prison. They will be placed as an additional story to the south ward. The iron was rolled in Pittsburg, and the holes for the rivets are now being riveted at Portland by Trenkman & Wolfe, the contractors. There are at present eighty-four cells in the prison, two of which are used for dungeons. This leaves over forty prisoners to be lodged in the hospital and other equally insecure places, thus endangering the lives of all the keepers as well as the safety of the prisoners. The cells are not being put in too soon.

Washington County Independent: The grain in this county will be better than was supposed. Many fields of spring wheat will make an average yield and about two-thirds of a crop. This is surprising when we have not had any rain since the early May sowing. Such a drouth would have played so with grain in California. It is all owing to the quality of our soil which has a wonderful capacity for retaining moisture. Much of the latest sowing will have to be cut for hay. Some fields will be a failure, as the grain did not come up on account of the dry weather at the time and after the sowing.

A correspondent of the Albany Herald writes from Jefferson: Having made a trip up to South Santiam to Sweet Home and came back down the south side of South Santiam, crossing at the Sanderson bridge, my convictions are that Mr. F. Mais has the best field of oats, and Mr. Elbert Kees, Sr., has the best field of wheat he went Sand [illegible] bridge and Sweet Home, lying immediately on the road. But Mr. John Huff, on the J. L. Kall farm, has thirty-five or forty acres that will beat the wheat referred to above 20 per cent or more, and John Smith, F. P. DeVaney and H. H. Quigley can beat either wheat or oats badly. In fact the best grain I have seen in Linn county is between the Thomas creek and the North Santiam, and I have seen many others who have been over much more of the country than I have. So much for Forks of Santiam. I also took a trip from Jefferson down Santiam, crossing Willamette at Buena Vista, from thence to Rickreall, and then west three miles, and the best grain I saw in Polk county is on the old man Hagey's farm, and I am quite certain that he has twenty or thirty acres of wheat that will yield forty bushels per acre this season.

Southern Oregon.

Of James Loughlin, since 1853 a resident of southern Oregon, who died recently at the age of 83 years, the Ashland Tidings says: "His life spanned the whole history of the government of the United States of America. When a boy he shook hand with Washington, the first president, in Philadelphia, and three years ago, when President Hayes passed through Ashland, Uncle Jim was introduced to him as a citizen who at that time could say he had taken by the hand both the first and the last president of the United States.

Weidler's lumbering crew is engaged blasting obstructions from the Washougal river, to permit a free run of the logs this winter.

The fires along the Sound are terrific, exceeding anything of the kind seen there for a number of years past. The damage doing every day is immense.

The Spring Hill water works at Seattle are employing 104 white men in ditching, laying mains, etc. The works will be of sufficient capacity to supply a population of 50,000.

Of the 116 passengers on board the steamship Dakota on her last trip from San Francisco 62 were for Victoria, 10 for Port Townsend, 110 for Seattle, 48 for Tacoma and 8 for Olympia.

J. Weinhard, the Dayton brewer, says he will probably re-establish his brewery in Walla Walla instead of Dayton, as the most of the beer he manufactured while in Dayton was sent west of that city.

McPherson and Snodderly will be hanged August 9, unless an appeal is taken. Snodderly is not so bold, but appears to be weakening to a certain extent. McPherson has offered his attorneys $1000 if they would take his case to the supreme court, and it is likely they will do so.

Work upon the Methodist Protestant church, at Seattle, is about completed, and the edifice, barring accidents, delays, will be ready for dedication by the first of next month. The seats are expected shortly. They are walnut and eastern ash. The building inside is by far the most beautiful church in Seattle. It will be capable of seating 450 people comfortably.

Henry Sanderson came very near meeting with a fatal accident while working on the Walla Walla city pile driver. It appears that he was working at the base of the gins when one of the men above let fall a heavy crowbar, the instrument descending point first, piercing the brim of Henry's hat, cutting through the collar of his shirt and imbedding itself in the ground.

Seattle Chronicle: The work of coppering piles for the improvement company's new dock goes on somewhat slowly, owing to the scarcity of the covering material. About ten piles daily are coppered. It will be some time before a full supply will be obtained. Something like 400 coppered piles will be required in completing the new wharf. This fall, after it is built, the present wharf will be carried out 110 feet beyond its present site.

Walla Walla Statesman: For the past few days Mr. A. S. Miller of Portland, a prominent bridge builder and contractor, accompanied by his head man, F. E. Russell, has been in this city. The object of his visit was to look to the building of the new Main street bridge across Mill creek, and also the Milton bridge across the Walla Walla river; the former to cost $2580 and the latter $3675. Mr. Harry Chapman has the contract for these two structures and yesterday made the necessary arrangements for sub-letting the same to Mr. Miller, who will at once inaugurate operations under the management of Mr. Russell.

Tacoma Ledger: Mr. V. G. Bogue, chief assistant engineer N. P. R. R., west of division, who arrived here a few days ago, has ordered that the decking of the coal bunkers here begin at once, and to consult and see plans to that end Mr. Butler, late foreman under Superintendent Parke, goes to Portland also to-day. Mr. Butler has been chosen superintendent of the work, and it is announced that he will commence immediately on his return. Beyond the fact that the decking will be somewhat novel in design, and of course for the main purpose of keeping the coal dry, nothing particular is known.

Dayton Tribune: O. A. Lacey, one of our old settlers and successful farmers, informs us that his entire crop, both fall and spring sowing, will yield forty bushels per acre. D. W. Percival has a large field of fall wheat on his Rock creek farm that will yield forty bushels per acre. Mr. Patterson, living near Spangle, says his crops will be better than last year and is well satisfied with the prospects of his yield. The cool nights for the last week are very favorable for grain, and the general impression now is that grain will be [illegible]

Egypt writes that crop prospects there are by no means as flattering as they might be. It is doubtful if the crop will exceed that of last year.

At the recent annual meeting of the Baptist association a proposition was made to raise $2000 for mission work on Puget Sound, with the understanding that the American Baptist Home Mission society of New York will co-operate by adding $2 to every $1 raised on the field, thus giving to Puget Sound Baptists $6000 for mission work during the ensuing year. About $1300 of the $2000 is already pledged, and Rev J. C. Baker, superintendent of the Baptist missions for the Pacific coast, representing the Baptist Home Mission society from Southern California to British Columbia, inclusive, is at Seattle to meet the executive committee with reference to missions appointments and full arrangements.

THE MAN MILLINER.

The Torture He Puts the Ladies Through While Taking Their Measures.

London Truth.

Man milliners seem to be on the increase. I am told that it is absolutely necessary it should be so in order to restore the lost balance, and that, since the medical profession has been invaded by women, the milliner trade has been in turn usurped by men. Of course, the irresistible Worth is at the bottom of it all. His salons are at least as fashionable as those of the great Mesmer used to be. To inspire Worth with a real interest seems to be the ambition of the Parisian leaders of ton. To get him really to do his best is as rare a thing as it is to get any crack teacher of singing to take a special interest in a pupil. But then, as the farmer's wife said to her husband, who drank occasionally—only occasionally—"When he do, he do!" And when Worth is really personally affected, the privileged being on whom his artistic attention is lavished well knows that, beside her toilet, all non-Worth's—and even Worth's own uninspired—efforts are bound to pale.

Fancy the flutter of disappointment of the lady who went to him the other day and asked him if he would consent to disguise and prescribe—I mean, design—for her a costume. Throwing himself back in his arm chair, the great artist requested the applicant to walk up and down before him, while with half-closed eyes he appeared lost in vague contemplation. At last rousing himself with an effort, he exclaimed: "It is useless madam. Jene vous sens pas aujourd'hui. Come back to-morrow if you like and I will consider you again. I promise nothing." And she went and she returned! Daughters of Eve! Rights of woman! What is the world coming to when these, and other like stories come over the water? Our beauties sniff at Worth and all his works, turn up their little noses, toss their charming heads and declare that "never, never in England would they put up with such a creature"—and (such for female human inconsistency) go straight off to Paris, pose to Worth, get themselves designed and equipped from top to toe, and then come home boasting of their dresses.

Still our shores were safe. These things were foreign luxuries—affectations. We are safe no more.

This happened last week. O ye men folk, take heed! Do you know what ladies' "shopping" low covers or otherwise? No? Then learn. In a fashionable London establishment the lady goes to choose her material and to be measured. A skillful milliner is employed. While the dress is in progress she returns to be fitted. To her surprise, the man-milliner now enters upon the scene. The milliner girl knows her superior and stands aside respectfully. With all the assurance of a connoisseur, the master remarks, "Madam obviously must be taken in here—a little—a shadow of a shade—so—so," and quickly with a pin he puts in the pleat. "Ah! you have failed again," turning to the nervous milliner-girl. "Do you not perceive that madam must have a broader line here, a more ample fold there? Give me another pin—so. That will do. Lift your arm, madam—just a little higher—so. The fold still draws too much—so;" and in goes another pin. Presently the artist pauses, and steps back with half-closed eyes and surveys the "subject" in silence. She has already got used to him—and, indeed, cannot help seeing, by the effect in the long glass, that every touch tells, and that the fellow knows his business well. Then he approaches meditatively, takes out one pin and thoughtfully replaces another, whistling low between his teeth. The lady supposes, naturally, that is the way he thinks; perhaps he could not pin without whistling any more than a groom could attend to a horse without hissing. She puts up with it. No rudeness is meant, and the whole thing is so unusual and strange to her that a little, more or less, as things have gone so far, can not much matter. And then, as many others have practically thought before her, the end justifies the means. And the end is undoubtedly such a fitting dress as she has, perhaps, never had before. "Worth or not Worth," I heard a lady exclaim after the operation I have just described, "the man was worth a dozen of those fumbling milliners—did everything in half the time, and did it twice as well."

That is the moral. We, matrons and virgins all, what do you think of it? I know what you will say. "After all, it is a matter of taste, and taste is a conventional thing. If the men can fight better than the women, we shall not surrender so solid an advantage to the flimsy claims of conventionality." The fact is, in the long run, women will always pocket pride and prejudice, and lean to the people who enable them to appear to the best advantage. As to the man-milliner, some will say, "'Tis true, 'tis pity," and a few, perhaps, may sigh, "Pity 'tis 'tis true."

A KENTUCKY JOINT DISCUSSION.

How a Republican Orator was Met when he Asserted Historical Facts.

Washington Republican.

At the close of the war old Wolford settled down and became a democrat, and most of his men did the same thing. When the democrats gave him the nomination for congress last fall the republican state committee sent General Speed Fry up into his district to counteract the influence of old Wolford's war record. Fry started off, intending to remain in the district six weeks and speak wherever Wolford did. He was back in four days.

"What's the matter general?" asked the chairman in surprise, as he stalked in, black as a thundercloud.

"Matter? Why matter enough. If you want a man to go into the Eleventh district to talk against that —— old scoundrel Wolford you will have to find somebody beside me. I'm done. When I agreed to stump the district I supposed I would have sensible men to talk to; instead I find them all a set of blankety blanked fools and liars and scoundrels."

"Didn't they treat you right?"

"Treat me right! Oh, yes, they treated me right. They treated me like a prince. When I reached the first town old Wolford met me with a cordial welcome, and, to my surprise, he gave the opening and closing of the joint discussion. I spoke for one hour and a half on national issues—the tariff, finances and the standing of the parties—and dwelt with special emphasis on the magnanimity shown by the Federal government in its treatment of the confederates at the close of the war. About half of my audience had served in the confederate army and I saw I was producing a good impression.

"Now what do you suppose that old hook-nosed rascal of a Wolford did? Why he got up and began talking, never paying the slightest attention to what I had said on national issues, but after a brief introduction taking up my good-will plea. 'Don't you believe a word General Fry has told you about the magnanimity of the federal government and the republican party,' he shrieked. 'It's all a lie. What did they do with General Lee after the surrender of Appomattox? Why they took him out and hanged him right between the lines, in plain view—'

"'Hold on,' I shouted, 'that is not true. General Wolford, you know you are perverting facts.'

"Instantly two or three of the old Second cavalry boys sprang to their feet and swore that they had been on the ground and seen General Lee hung, one of them remarking, with a swagger, that if anybody questioned the statement he would have to chew on the barrel of a six shooter.

"'What did they do with Jeff Davis after he had surrendered?' continued old Wolford. 'Why, they tied 1500 pounds of iron to his legs, threw him into a dungeon and starved him for eight months and then took him out and hung him. That's what they did with him, a h—l of a magnanimous government that.'

"I interrupted to say that Jeff Davis was alive now and healthy, but two or three Second cavalry liars stood up and swore that they had seen him hung and that if any man disputed it they would make him eat his word or six inches of cold steel. And there the old scoundrel stood, hanging Alex. Stephens, Longstreet, Joe Johnston, Hampton and every confederate of prominence he could think of and proving what he said by eye-witnesses from the Second Kentucky cavalry. What show did I have talking to such a crowd of Ananiases as that? I quit then and there. If you ever get me there in those mountains again you may shoot me."

AN OLD RAILROAD SCHEME.

The Astoria and Willamette Valley Railroad of Twenty-five Years Ago.

Yamhill Reporter.

The following act passed by the territorial legislature in 1856, is interesting on account of the many historical and distinguished names connected therewith, and the present importance of the subject:

"An act to incorporate the Astoria and Willamette Valley Railroad Company.

"SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the territory of Oregon, that John Adair, John McClure, James Welch, James Taylor, Conrad Boelling, W. W. Parker of Clatsop county, Paton Welles, J. Imbrie, Wm. Wilson, W. R. Russell, T. R. Cornelius, Charles McKay, Morris Wolf, E. C. Kinney, Joe Meek, Riley Bean, M. R. Crish, W. T. Newby, Andrew Hunck, Edward Shiel, J. D. Boon, J. H. Moores, W. D. Griswold, Samuel Parker, Jacob Conser, Joseph Holman, W. H. Rector, Louis Westacott, L. F. Grover, E. F. Skinner, Elijah Bristow, Geo. Humphrey, Jos. Teal, I. R. Moores, Paul Brattain, A. A. Smith, W. C. Gallagher, B. F. Whitson, Thos. Kendal, Wilson Blain, Chas. Drain, Robt. Newell, J. S. Stephens, J. D. Crawford, H. V. V. Holmes, A. C. R. Shaw, John H. Lewis, B. F. Burch, Harrison Linville, John Thorp, T. C. Avery, James Barnhart, L. N. Smith, John Kelsay, A. J. Thayer, William Gird, Isaac Moore, J. Dohee, Leonard & Green, Ladd & Co., T. Pritchard, John McNamee, Thomas Carter, D. H. Lonsdale, J. S. Bynerson, S. Moss, Geo. Abernethy, Wm. C. Bowering, Thomas H. Smith, H. M. Knighton, Harry Stephens, and their associates, successors and assignees are hereby created a corporation and body politic, for the purpose of constructing, erecting, putting in operation and maintaining a railroad from Astoria to Salem and thence to Eugene City or some other point in the Willamette valley, by the name of the 'Astoria & Willamette Valley Railroad Company.'"

A quarter of a century has elapsed since these men associated themselves together by this act. Many are numbered with the dead, and all have grown old and silver-haired, and still there is no railroad to Astoria; but the time will come when it will be built, and many of these old "pioneers" will live to see this enterprise, started by them twenty-five years ago, carried forward and completed, and Astoria take the place she is entitled to by nature in the commercial world.

NO NUPTIAL HONOR SOUGHT.

The Widow of Frank Leslie Denies the Report of a Speedy Marriage.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Speaking of the rumor that Mrs. Frank Leslie was to be married, a writer in the Capital says:

"Mrs. Leslie told me with her own lips that she was not married, and that she was not going to marry the gentleman reported to be engaged to her."

"'For what reason should I marry?' said the lady, as she was signing a ten thousand dollar check for white paper. 'I am making more money than I know what to do with. My newspaper establishment and magazines of various kinds, which the lawyers told me would produce nothing, are bringing me an income of about $150,000 a year, and I tell you that when a woman is making money like that there is no earthly reason why she should marry a man to help her squander it. I am entirely devoted to my business and you must agree that it is becoming enormous. No, I shall go to Europe and enjoy myself for a few months; establish agencies, engage new writers, get new ideas and return and direct all my energies to building up my publications.'

"'You may say for me,' said Mrs. Leslie, 'that I am not to be married to any duke, count or king, at present.'"

FOOTS AND COMMENTS.

A boy says in his composition that "Onions are the vegetables that make you sick when you don't eat them yourse."

Statistics show that the growth of timber in Kansas is yearly increasing beyond the consumption.

A German paper, in translating Yankee Doodle, says: "The word doodle signifies a lazy scoundrel, a bummer."

The New York Sun says the democratic platform should be "Resolved, that we want no offices." Then let the republican platform be "All right, you don't have to have 'em."

The Chinamen of New York rarely use their real names in business. Wah Lee means "united profit," Yee Lee "easy profit," and so on. They carry on their correspondence at home in their assumed names, and thus produce an impression of business prosperity far beyond the possibilities of a side street laundry.

Six hundred and thirty-three vessels of every description entered the port of New York during the past month, of which 159 were steamers, of which twenty-one were under the American flag (construction) chiefly, and 101 British. The arrivals for the six months were 3[illegible] of which 988 were steamers, 230 ships, 291 barks, [illegible] brigs, and 813 schooners.

Iowa has just paid off the last dollar of her war indebtedness. Iowa was one of the first to offer aid to the Union in the hour of peril, and one of the most generous in responding to subsequent appeals. Her credit to-day has been obtained by careful retrenchment and a judicious use of the ballot, which other states with large debts and small credit would do well to imitate.

Keeley is said to be making a new engine for a final test of his wonderful motor. Experiments heretofore made are declared perfectly satisfactory to his financial backers, and the scientific world are beginning to believe that Keeley has really discovered a new power, which is to revolutionize the world. All are looking forward to the approaching public test with great solicitude.

A large sum of money—not less than $100,000,000—is expended by American travelers in Europe every summer, but the amount is not insignificant which is expended every year at the seaside resorts lying between Cape May point and Long Branch. It is estimated that the season's receipts from Long Branch to Long Beach, inclusive, are not less than $5,000,000, and $1,500,000 is a low estimate of the receipts from Long Branch to Cape May, so that the 3,500,000 inhabitants of New York, Philadelphia and Brooklyn pour out from $[illegible]000,000 to $15,000,000 every summer upon a strip of sand less than 200 miles long.

The Pall Mall Gazette comments upon "the miserable state of the Irish fisheries." It asserts that the whole of Ireland furnishes only 11,800 men and boys employed in garnering the harvest of the sea, and their annual catch is only 25,940 tons, while in Scotland there are 48,100 fishermen, who catch 210,313 tons of fish every year. Each Scotch fisherman, therefore, catches on an average 4½ tons per annum, while the Irishman only catches 2½ tons, all of which shows the terrible result of English despotism upon the "Green Isle." Even the fish refuse to approach the Irish coast—or possibly the Irish fishermen haven't the heart or industry to take them in.

A French engineer in Brazil has lately been selected to construct what will probably be, when completed, the largest dam in the world. The main dam will be 940 feet long by 58 feet high, and two smaller ones will close side depressions. This work will, it is calculated, back the water over 1500 acres, and retain 14,000,000 cubic meters of water, sufficient to provide for all the cattle of the region during three years and for the irrigation of 5000 acres of flat bottom land alongside the river bed below. The rivers of Ceara fill in the wet season alone. A dam 940 feet long and more than 50 feet high will be likely to give a deal of trouble when it breaks, as break it will sooner or later.

Hannibal Hamlin's New Story of Daniel Webster.

Cincinnati Inquirer.

"What public man, Mr. Hamlin, was the ablest that you ever found?"

"Daniel Webster towered head and shoulders above any of them. He was one of those few men who became greater as you approached him. That can be said of few men in this world. The nearer you came to Webster the more you saw and acknowledged his greatness. I can remember a little speech he made which has never been referred to in print, and as both the parties to it are now dead I do not object to telling you about it. You remember James M. Mason of Virginia, what a patronizing, supercilious man he was. He had no love for Webster, and on one occasion he rose in his place and read a little pamphlet which ascribed to Mr. Webster certain language, and on that Mason proceeded to make a speech. Webster was drunk. He listened as well as he could to what Mason was saying, and then he got up so unsteady at first that he held to his desk with both hands, but as he proceeded and became more luminous and clear he raised one hand and after awhile he raised both hands, and he made such a speech as I think I never heard to see an opponent all to pieces. He called for the pamphlet after awhile and Mason sent it over to him. He held it up with a look of contempt on his great rugged countenance and turned it over and said: 'No title page, anonymous. No author. The poor thing is fatherless, motherless. This you call a document.' Mason watched him with apprehension. Then Webster addressed himself to the language ascribed to him in the pamphlet, and it had seemed to all of us senators who heard Mason that the language was capable of the interpretation he had given it. Around, there seemed no other interpretation. But Webster, with that logical, legal mind he had, in a very few minutes convinced everybody present, Mason included, that the language not only did not mean what Mason read, but that it meant the very opposite. As soon as he brought this out Mason wanted to apologize, but Webster, towering up, told him to take his seat. We saw by Mason's face that he felt he had got himself into a place that would do him no credit. Then Webster continued, and the excoriation was something indescribable, yet all the while severely contemptuous in the manner to cut Mason to pieces and make him feel it, for you know he was nothing if not a rod over somebody.

"At the end of the speech one of the senators said to Webster: 'You have used him all up; let it not be printed in the public debates.' 'Very well,' said Mr. Webster, 'let it go.'"

SENECA, N. Y., Dec. 3, 1879.

I am the pastor of the Baptist church here and an educated physician. I am not in practice, but am my sole family physician, and advise in many chronic cases. Over a year ago I recommended your Hop Bitters to my invalid wife, who has been under medical treatment of Albany's best physicians several years. She has become thoroughly cured of her various complicated diseases by their use. We both recommend them to our friends, many of whom have also been cured of their various ailments by them.

REV. E. R. WARREN.

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

FRIDAY, July 20.

The absence of telegraphic communication is more keenly felt to-day than yesterday. Business is confined entirely to local limits, which are sadly restricted. Possibly we may get used to the situation and expecting only mail communication settle down to that primitive mode of doing business. Telegraph officials here look for no resumption of work for a week at least, and until the wires work no business of any importance can be done. Mail communication with San Francisco requires but three days and this time is as long as three weeks of a few years ago.

Local produce lines seem to share in the general dullness, and not a quotation can be found that requires a change. The steamer brought a good supply of feed and potatoes and hay is coming in more freely.

Receipts of produce for twenty-four hours ending noon Wednesday, were 600 bbls flour, 9883 lbs wool, 51 bls hay, 1035 lbs hides, 6 bxs butter, 3042 doz eggs, 8 bxs fruit, 100 bbls lime. Also 210 sks flax seed, 6300 lbs hides, 12,725 lbs wool, 1440 bbls flour, 540 ctls wheat from the eastern section.

Receipts of produce for twenty-four hours ending noon Thursday, were 734 bbls flour, 2000 lbs hides, 246 doz eggs, 45 bxs fruit, 7 bxs butter. Also 440 ctls wheat, 230 bbls flour, 4761 lbs hides from the eastern section.

Receipts for past twenty-four hours have been 712 bbls flour, 22 ctls oats, 1500 lbs mill stuff, 42,647 lbs wool, 2100 lbs hides, 2557 doz eggs, 5 bxs butter, 21 bls hay, 260 bbls lime. Also 900 ctls wheat, 200 bbls flour, 37,360 lbs wool, 3875 lbs hides from the eastern section.

The Columbia took on: 3525 hf sks Standard flour, 30 flasks quicksilver, 210 sks flaxseed, 135 sks [illegible], 410 (bs) valley wool, 188 sks (58,505 lbs) eastern wool, 8 cs cassimeres, 2 bls flannels, 8 bls [illegible] blankets, 4 bls doeskins, 220 sheepskins, 1 bl [illegible], 126 dry hides, 34,000 lath, 5 bdls hoop poles, 221 [illegible] plaster heads, 100 bdls hf heads, 10 bdls hf staves.

The Queen of the Pacific brought 264 hf 121 bbls 440 kgs 100 bxs 200 sks sugar, 3 bbls 100 cs 175 drms syrup, 59 sks 110 mts rice, 1810 sks salt, 1 hf 210 kgs pickles, 256 pkgs tea, 391 bxs soap, 145 sks beans, 62 cs 85 sks coffee, 327 cs canned goods, 4 cs extract, 2 bbls vinegar, 31 pkgs dried fruit, 173 pkgs spice, 22 cs cream tartar, 20 cs honey, 10 cs candy, 19 cs matches, 2 hf 3 bbls 5 kits 20 cs fish, 11 sks nuts, 5 sks herring, 11 cs mustard, 20 cs yeast powder, 5 bks meal, 2 cs starch, 2 cs lemon sugar, 32 cs soda and saleratus, 23 cs crackers, 1 hf 5 bbls currants, 6 [illegible] bbls hams, 15 cs beef, 38 cs [illegible] table butter, 17 cs cheese, 30 tcs 10 cs lard, 55 bls bags, 280 bbls cement, 1900 sks middlings, 718 sks ground barley, 160 cs rope, 29 kgs nails, 68 cs cigars, 147 pkgs tobacco. For Astoria she had 2 bbls pork, 14 cs lard, 1 tc 6 bbls hams, 21 bxs crackers, 24 bls meal, 3 cs milk, 5 cs paste, 264 sks feed, 200 sks ground barley, 73 cs canned goods, 151 sks salt, 10 sks rice, 31 hf 6 bbls sugar, 24 sks coal, 36 pigs lead, 184 pigs tin, 2 cs cigars, 8 pkgs tobacco.

California Grain Exports

In its resume of the wheat trade for the season just passed the San Francisco Bulletin furnishes figures from which we gather the following statistical information.

The quantities and values of the monthly shipments of flour and wheat from California by water for the cereal year of 1882-3 were as follows

| | Flour— Barrels. | Value. | Wheat— Centals. | Value. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| July | 74,180 | $334,571 | 871,703 | $1,506,559 |
| August | 95,031 | 490,124 | 1,115,680 | 2,245,067 |
| September | 70,569 | 356,503 | 1,351,340 | 2,608,941 |
| October | 102,031 | 510,446 | 1,712,274 | 2,923,960 |
| November | 122,043 | 603,392 | 2,501,337 | 3,602,427 |
| December | 58,495 | 285,696 | 1,414,814 | 2,446,393 |
| January | 113,444 | 544,350 | 1,450,890 | 2,998,234 |
| February | 74,220 | 362,135 | 1,522,653 | 2,625,437 |
| March | 105,669 | 510,917 | 1,110,124 | 2,175,364 |
| April | 42,340 | 221,338 | 406,972 | 731,881 |
| May | 101,394 | 539,837 | 467,976 | 854,750 |
| June | 132,114 | 648,600 | 415,723 | 710,484 |
| Totals | 1,098,527 | $5,691,009 | 14,612,030 | $25,535,439 |
| 1881-2 | 870,242 | 4,243,120 | 22,179,057 | 36,323,969 |
| 1880-1 | 858,956 | 2,940,570 | 18,563,001 | 19,069,561 |

The foregoing were the best three consecutive years in the history of the California wheat trade. They show the following combined quantities and values:

| | Quantity. | Value. |
|---|---|---|
| Flour, bbls | 2,827,754 | $12,784,208 |
| Wheat, centals | 55,154,118 | 81,003,969 |
| Equivalent in wheat, centals | 58,139,334 | $93,797,177 |

This is equal to an export of 19,945,660 centals per annum for three years of an average value of $31,265,000 yearly.

It was not until 1872-73, that the wheat and flour exports combined exceeded 500,000 short tons. For that year the quantity was 531,804 tons, valued at $19,166,000. In the following year the crop was not so large, and there was less for export. There has been two worse crops. One of these was in 1875, and the other in 1877, the last named being the smallest in a dozen years. The largest crop raised in the state was in 1880, but a considerable proportion of that crop did not get exported until the year of 1882-83. Reducing flour to wheat, by reckoning every barrel of flour as representing three centals wheat, and adding the result to the wheat shipments we have the following as the record of exports from California by water for the past decade, as expressed in tons of 2000 lbs:

| | Tons | Value |
|---|---|---|
| 1873-74 | 455,800 | $19,406,000 |
| 1874-75 | 508,900 | 16,134,000 |
| 1875-76 | 878,300 | 14,751,000 |
| 1876-77 | 604,100 | 21,528,000 |
| 1877-78 | 259,900 | 11,580,000 |
| 1878-79 | 580,100 | 19,847,000 |
| 1879-80 | 600,000 | 21,536,000 |
| 1880-81 | 787,500 | 21,965,000 |
| 1881-82 | 1,239,000 | 40,501,000 |
| 1882-83 | 894,682 | 31,140,000 |

SHIPPING NOTES.

The steamer Idaho is being thoroughly overhauled at New Tacoma.

The steamship Dakota has been supplied with [illegible] rails.

W. D. Scott & Co., of Seattle, have contracted with T. P. H. Whitelaw, the San Francisco wrecker, to raise the sunken Mississippi, Whitelaw agreeing to complete the work within seventy-five days.

The ship Mercury arrived at Victoria from Hong-Kong last Sunday. She brought 130 Chinese passengers and 1400 tons of freight. She will come over to the Sound, and take a load of lumber from the Tacoma saw mills for Sidney, Australia.

The Columbia sailed at 8:30 A. M. with 367 tons of freight.

The Oregon sailed from San Francisco to-day. That is to-day is her date and she doubtless left on time.

Liver disease, headache and constipation, cured by bad digestion, quickly cured by Brown's Iron Bitters.

WOLFE'S
Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps
is a general beverage and necessary corrective of water rendered impure by vegetable decomposition or other causes, as limestone, sulphate of copper, etc., the AROMATIC SCHNAPPS is superior to every other alcoholic preparation. A public trial of over thirty years' duration, in every section of our country, of UDOLPHO WOLFE'S SCHNAPPS, its unsolicited indorsement by the medical faculty, and a sale unequaled by any other alcoholic distillation, have insured for it the reputation for salubrity claimed for it. For sale by all druggists and grocers.

50 Years.
I have known and watched the use of Swift's Specific for over 50 years, and have never known or heard of a failure to cure Blood Poison when properly taken. I used it on my servants from 1850 to 1865, as did also a number of my neighbors, and in every case that came within my knowledge it effected a cure. In all my life I have never known a remedy that would so fully accomplish what it is recommended to do.
H. L. DENNARD, Perry, Ga.
I have known and used Swift's Specific for more than twenty years, and have seen more wonderful results from its use than from any remedy in or out of the pharmacopœia. It is a certain and safe antidote to all sorts of Blood Poison.
J. DICKSON SMITH, M.D., Atlanta, Ga.
The Great Drug House of Chicago.
We do not hesitate to say that for a year past we have sold more of Swift's Specific (S.S.S.) than all other Blood Purifiers combined, and with most astonishing results. One gentleman who used half a dozen bottles says that it has done him more good than treatment that cost him $1000. Another who has used it for a scrofulous affection reports a permanent cure from its use.
VAN SHAACK, STEVENSON & CO.
$1,000 REWARD!
Will be paid to any chemist who will find, on analysis of one hundred bottles S. S. S. one particle of Mercury, Iodide Potassium, or any mineral substance.
THE SWIFT PRESERVING CO.,
Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga.
Write for the little book, which will be mailed free.
Price—Small size, $1 per bottle. Large size (holding double quantity) at 75 per bottle. All druggists sell it.
